Throughout the year students and faculty alike stressed the importance of celebrating the 20th birthday of McClintock High School. At the Homecoming pep rally students sported colorful party hats, threw confetti and blew on noisemakers. As a finale, the cheer, pom and flag lines lit candles and presented a huge birthday cake to the school. Everyone joined in singing "Happy Birthday" to McClintock. This single event illustrated the pride and extra energy that "Big Red" has possessed throughout her history.

Although the HISTORIAN cannot offer you a huge cake with candles, the staff presents a book that attempts to capture in photos and words the emotions and events not only of 1983-84 but also of the past 19 years.

Plunge for Excellence Pervades Entire Campus

Through dedication, enjoyment and skill the people of McClintock have excelled in a multitude of interests varying from academics to athletics, to organizations, or to community services. Those extra distinctive qualities have propelled graduates to prestigious universities, professional athletics and a variety of multi-faceted careers.

A large part of this success can be attributed to the faculty's instruction and encouragement students received at McClintock. Teachers put forth an extra effort to improve the quality of their students' education. McClintock's commitment to excellence has affected the ability of student athletes, the high caliber of drama productions and the infectious excitement of pep rallies and assemblies. "Academic excellence is an attainable goal at McClintock because students, parents and teachers combine their efforts," said James Lyons, principal.

Improvement Highlights Years of Steady Change

From its beginnings as a cluster of buildings on a dirt field to its current standing as an academically and athletically superior school, McClintock has undergone many unnoticed yet evident changes.

After 20 years of steady improvements, McClintock boasts a huge auditorium, tennis and racquetball courts, two gymnasiums and an Olympic sized swimming pool. When students arrived on campus in August they noted the remodeled snack bar, the carpet in Units 1, 2, 3, 4 and the new kiosk on Senior Lawn. Memorial cement tables also comprised another addition to the lawn.

Along with these physical changes, many students felt more academic pressure. Underclassmen had to undergo the newly toughened requirements for graduation. For the first time many seniors still maintained a six-class load.

Athletics as well as academics has changed over the 20 year history of McClintock. Girls' sports have achieved more prominence and several teams such as badminton and golf performed exceptionally well.

Although changes greatly affect the school's condition, each Charger attempted to retain the extra-special personality and character that he valued in McClintock.

Traditions Mark McClintock's Anniversary

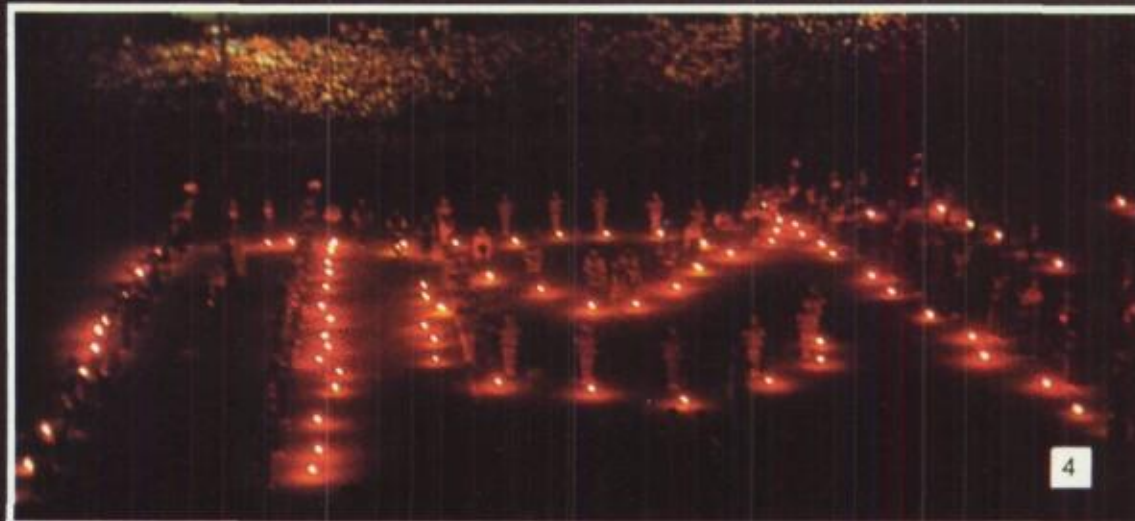

20th

"Something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue." This old wedding cliché touches on a special word in the English vocabulary—tradition.

Traditions played a distinctive and vital part during McClintock's 20th anniversary. Administrators and senior student council members met before the start of school to discuss the re-installment of various lost customs. These customs included no stepping on the MC in the gym, no freshmen on senior lawn and standing during "Red and Blue" and the Alma Mater.

"This year we made a serious effort to re-establish some of the traditions that have not been carried throughout the years," stated Kenny Pilcher, student body president.

Buff Week, Homecoming Week and Spring Week gained more participation from the entire school as everybody contributed to some aspect of these annual events. "I think McClintock's renewed energy is in itself a regained tradition. Everybody cares because this is an extra-special year," said Kathryn Sumners, senior.

EXTRA DIVERSITY

News Events, Styles, Weekend Entertainment Sway Campus' Attitudes

The McClintock campus reflected the news events, clothing styles and entertainment forms of the year.

A creative touch was added to old pastimes when groups of friends brainstormed for new and unique ideas for fun. Ice-blocking at Kiwanis Park, group shopping at super expensive stores or very cheap stores and watching VHS movies at home while munching popcorn became popular entertainment alternatives.

inexpensive ticket to many groups such as Ed-die Money, and tickets for David Bowie, Steve Nicks and Diana Ross ranged from 15 to 20 dollars.

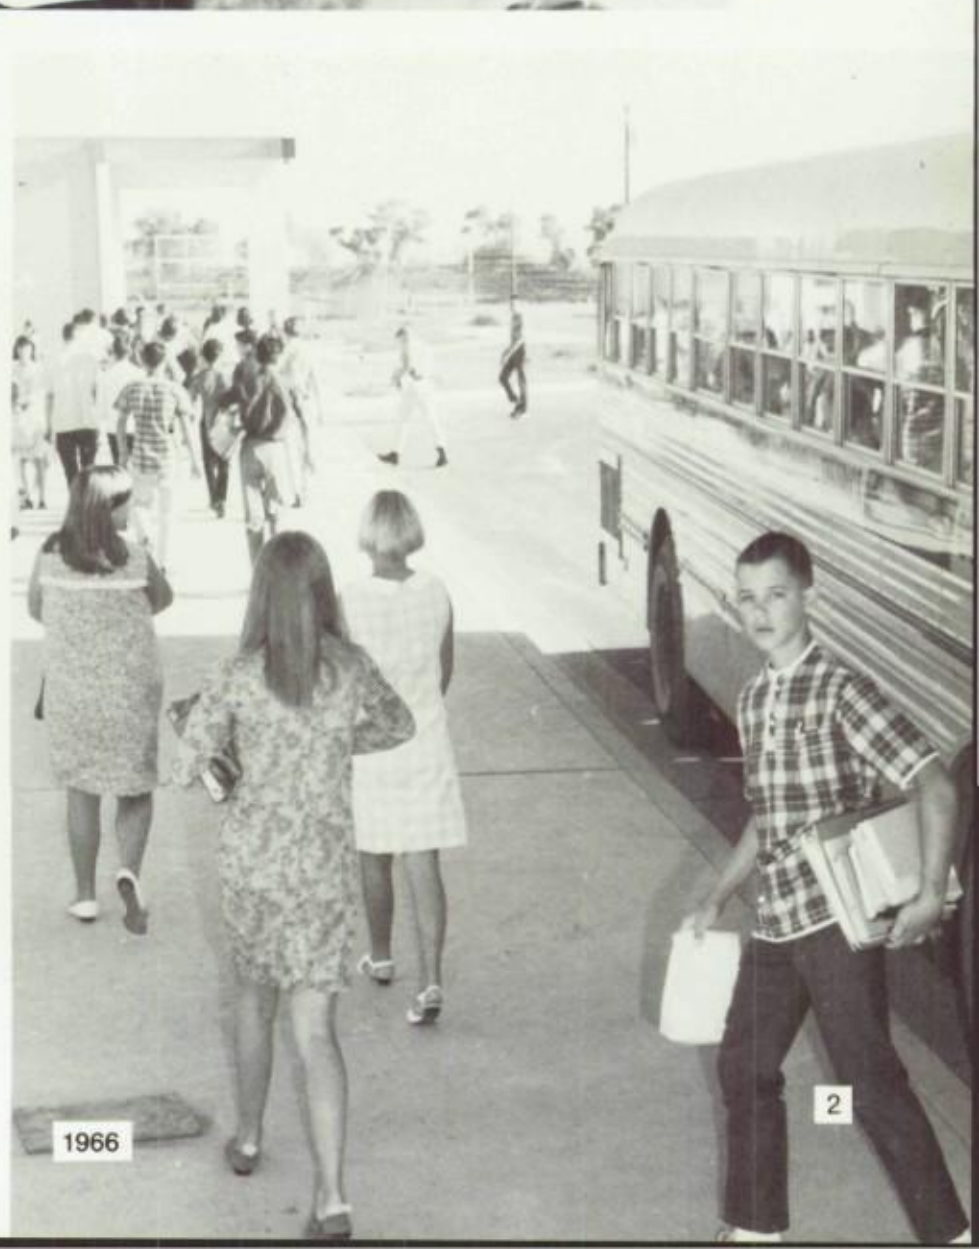

A barrage of plastic shoes, purses, earrings and belts accented many outfits. Animal prints, mini-dresses and exercise wear experienced popularity.

Awareness of news events was not limited to the campus itself; students tuned in to 6 and 10 p.m. newscasts to hear the latest on the downed Korean jet-liner, on Lebanon and Grenada.

Campus Life

Campus Displays Variety of Fashion Combinations

McClintock's campus displayed a variety of fashion combinations. Traditionally, jeans and tee-shirts were most predominant.

Last year's fads of mini-skirts and plaid shorts added to the year's trendwear, which included the "flashdance" look.

The newly-marketed, multi-colored, plastic shoes, introduced in the spring, gained popularity throughout the fall. Their low price and comfortable wear made them a necessity.

The motion picture "Flashdance" prompted students to make old sweatshirts and tee-shirts into something updated and fashionable. By removing the sleeves and neckline, something old became stylish.

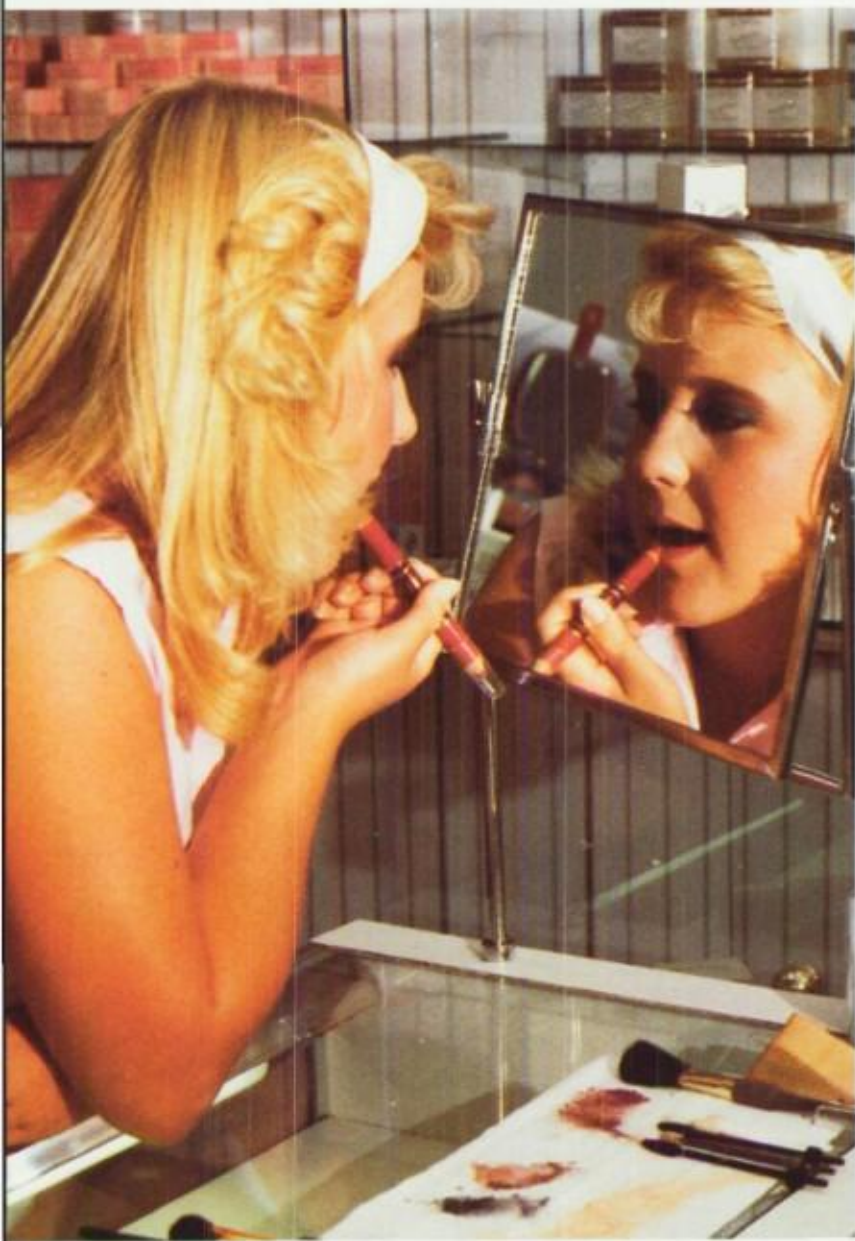

Students' casual look reflected their daily moods.

Makeovers and manicures also became more common. Girls focused on proper nailcare and techniques for applying make-up.

The "Flashdance" look motivates Peggy Davis, junior, to cut a sweatshirt.

At Merle Norman, Kris Ufalusi practices applying lip color.

Carolyn Mulhern tries to make a decision on what to wear.

Salons such as Merle Norman, gave complete make-overs using their products. The make-up used complimented the individuals' skin-coloring and features.

"It's interesting having someone else do my make-up. I get a lot of good ideas and tips," said Kris Ufalusi, senior.

Manicures and sculptured nails became increasingly popular. Some girls had them done for special occasions while others made it a ritual.

"It's time-consuming to keep my nails manicured so I've found it easier to have them done professionally," stated Candi Hooper, sophomore.

Trends ended as fast as they started, but McClintock students tried to make the most out of their individual looks.

Buttons, Shakers, Posters Overtake Campus

Students found a multitude of ways to show their interest in school events. Their expressions matched their diverse personalities.

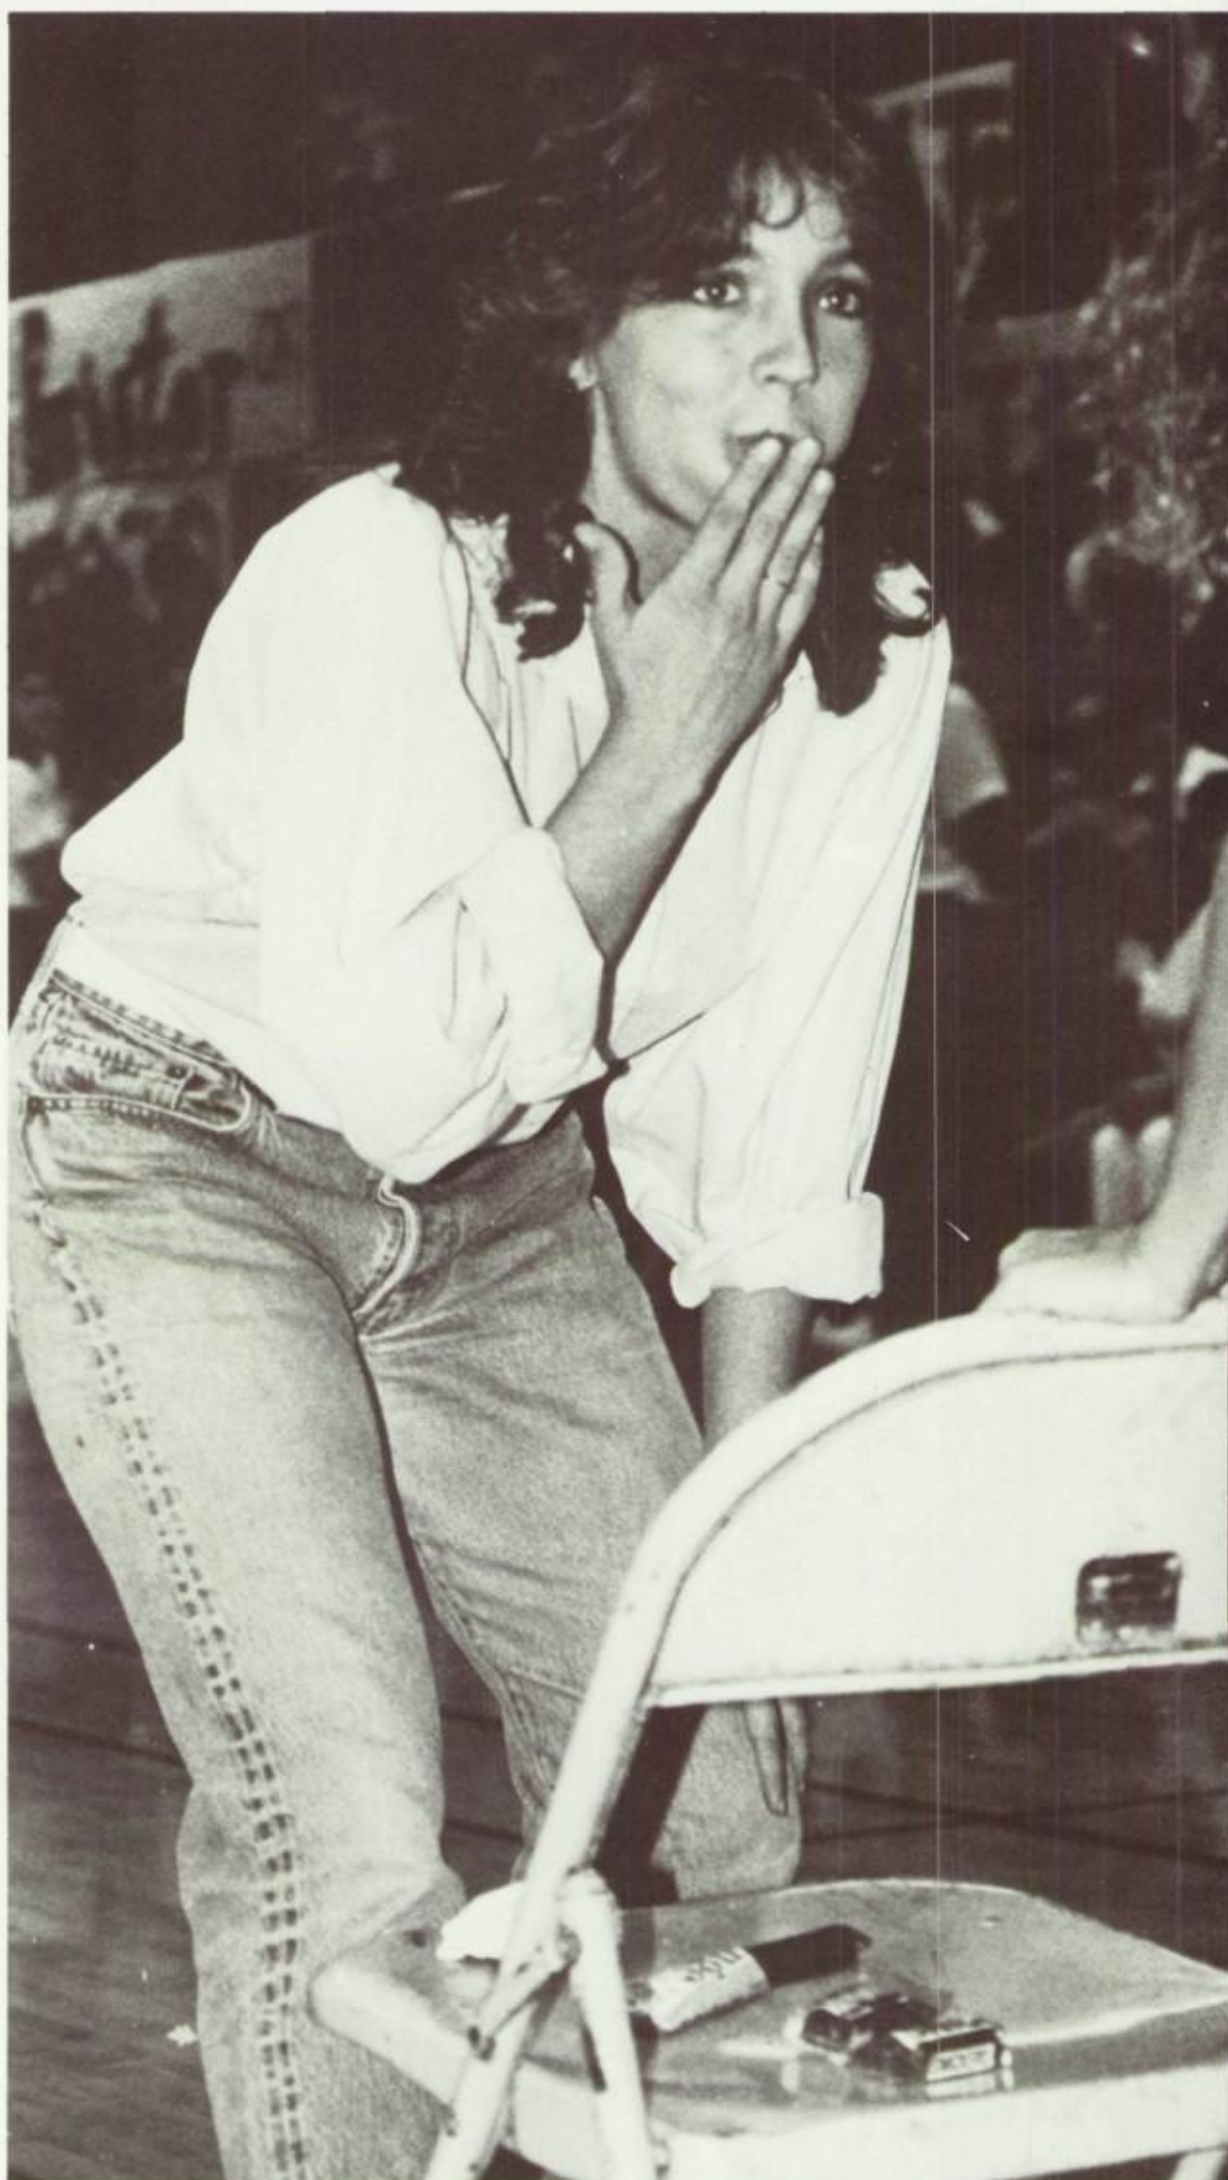

The posters hung on game days for both girls' and boys' sports proved helpful morale boosters. Many players delivered spirit boxes to fellow teammates. Students boosted pre-game excitement and individual spirit at every pep assembly. Items such as red and blue shakers, ribbons, and buttons became increasingly popular at football games.

On game days, students held before-school pep rallies when tight schedules forbade them. These rallies encouraged a positive attitude among students and players. Band, pom, and flag also joined the fanfare.

Homecoming week was one filled with excitement and many festivities. Lunch-time action which included digging for gold, boat races and the pirate relay helped to promote the theme "Pirates of the Caribbean."

The students in Spirit Club illustrated their excitement as did the majority of students at McClintock. People made the extra effort to attend away football games by riding the bus sponsored by the Spirit Club. Buses traveled to such locations as Moon Valley, Chaparral, and Yuma.

"The most rewarding part of being in Spirit Club is having parents and students tell me how we are restoring spirit at McClintock and making a real difference at football games. I feel we benefit the school by backing up the sports and other activities," stated Haley Gibbons, Spirit Club president.

Students Favor Casual, Inexpensive Entertainment

Music, concerts and movies played an important role in students' lives. Whether it be "dollar night" at the local theater or listening to tapes on a walkman, students favored various pastimes.

Movies which included "Return of the Jedi," "Trading Places," and "Flashdance" proved to be entertaining. People stood in line for hours waiting to see the third sequel to the box office smash "Star Wars," which revealed Darth Vader's true identity and family ties.

Entertainment wouldn't have been the same without concerts such as Def Leppard, The Police and Diana Ross. Stevie Nicks' charity concert for the City of Hope and American Heart Association which also featured Kenny Loggins and Joe Walsh, was also a success.

"The best concert of the year had to be The Police with Madness and The Thompson Twins. It's very rare for three good groups to get together and put on a show like that. We were right up front so we got a really good look at the groups. It was really hot and crowded but the great music and video screen made the discomfort worth it," commented Jenny Turk, senior.

Tuesday became notorious for "dollar night" at the theater. Dating also grew in popularity for that special night. It wasn't unusual for a particular movie to be sold out long before its showing. The best way to be assured a ticket to a movie was to purchase it hours in advance.

"I like going to the theater on Tuesday because it's stupid to pay four dollars for the same movie you can see for one. They're the same movies just cheaper. I hardly ever go on weekends anymore," said Julie Olson, senior.

Students at McClintock seemed to prefer their entertainment to be casual and inexpensive. Though concert tickets weren't always cheap, students found them to be a reasonable and necessary expense.

Nightlife, Most Diversified Time of Day

Students find that a good workout at a spa relieves tension of a long day.

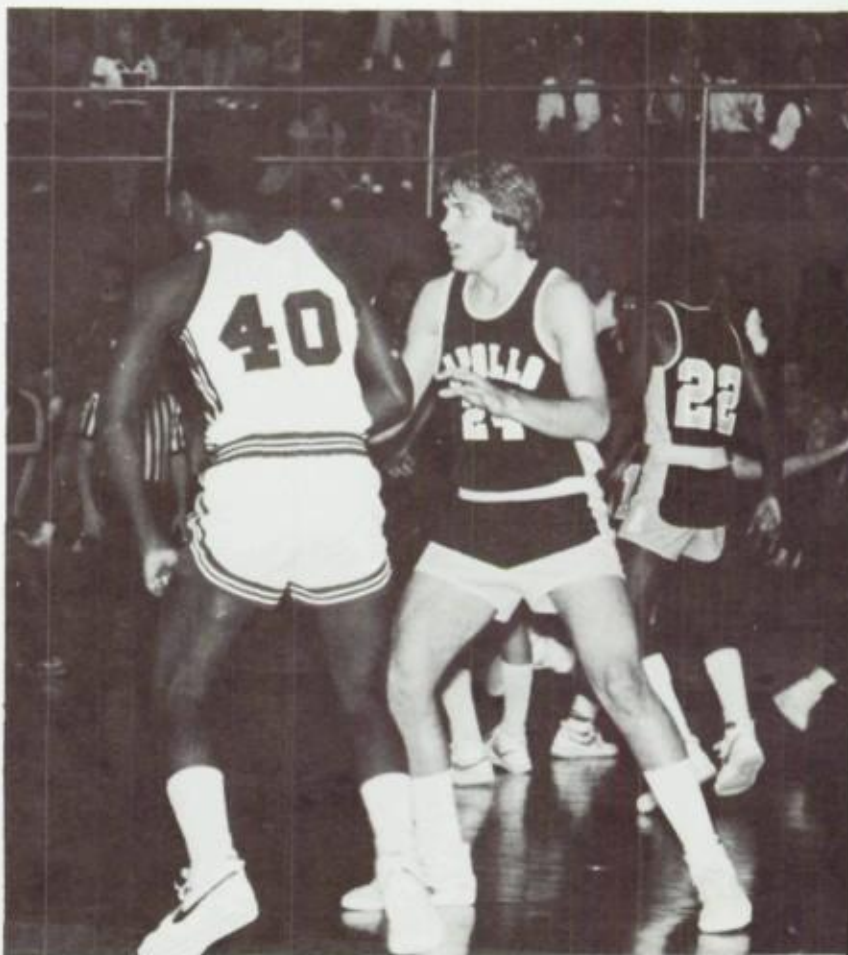

Nightlife had a lot to offer students, everything from football and basketball games to minor night at After the Gold Rush. Students found it to be the most versatile time of the day.

Football and basketball games were not only a place to find excitement, but also were a place to meet friends and socialize. After home games a dance would usually follow. There, students would get together and discuss the previous game or ponder their plans for the weekend. By 11:45, students ready to get a drink and visit, packed the local McDonald's.

Students usually saved their dating for the weekend. Dates consisted of either attending a movie, having dinner or meeting for ice cream.

Like other clubs, After the Gold Rush hosted a special minor night on Sunday. Students from all over the valley participated in the fun. It became a great way to end the weekend.

Copper Strike, Floods Create Problems, Hurt State

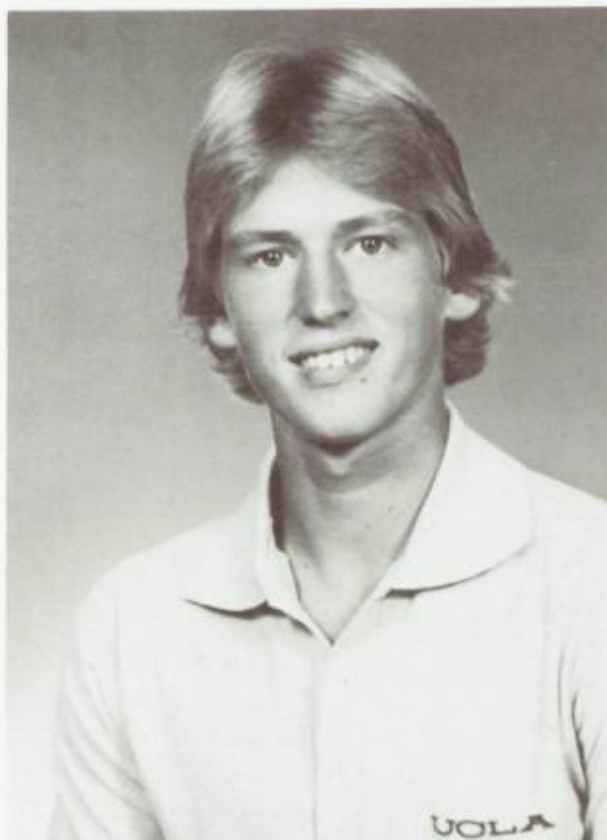

Arizona had her ups and downs during the year. Although water has always been a blessing, in October the state received more than its share of rain and snow. As a result, several of the state's rivers overflowed. This caused Interstate 10 to close and traffic was re-routed.

Economically, the copper strike entered its second year and hurt the state significantly. Several families left areas such as Ajo, Morenci, and Globe.

In sports, Rick Neuheisel, former McClintock quarterback, lead UCLA to a victory over the "fighting Illini" in the 1984 Rosebowl. Neuheisel later signed with the USFL team San Antonio Gunslingers.

Old Glory and a U.S. Marine stand by as rescue workers sort through the ruins of the American Embassy in Beirut, after it was hit by a terrorist bomb.

International affairs preoccupied the minds of many Americans and also many McClintock students. The tragedy of the Marines in Lebanon, the downed Korean airplane, the invasion of Grenada and the death of Yuri Andropov, the Soviet premeier eclipsed much of the economic news and the beginnings of the 1984 presidential race.

During the early part of the school year, the Soviet Union created an international incident when their military shot down a Korean airliner with several Americans aboard. Another international tragedy occured when the U.S. Marines lost many men when a truck full of explosives crashed into their barracks in Lebanon. President Reagan withdrew the troops in late February.

The death of Russia's Andropov and the appointment of Konstantin Chernenko caused ripples in the diplomatic world due to his advanced age.

Nineteen eighty-four was also the year of the Winter and Summer Olympic games. At the winter competition in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia American brothers Phil and Steve Mahre captured the gold and silver in slalom skiing. Summer athletes looked forward to the upcoming Los Angeles games.

Several black Americans made their distinctive mark in a variety of fields. Vanessa Williams became the first black woman to win the Miss America crown. Guion Bluford earned the honor of being the first black in space along with Sally Ride, America's first woman in space. The presidential race witnessed the announcement of Jesse Jackson's bid for the democratic nomination.

On the lighter side of the news, the nation became involved with the Cabbage Patch doll craze and Princess Diana and Prince Charles expected the birth of their second child.

Organizations

Friends, Organizations Prove Important Part of Treasured Memories

A very important part of any student's high school memories consists of his interaction not only with friends, but in clubs and organizations. Over forty different clubs prompted student participation. Whether it was the combined endeavor that produced DECA's pretzel sale, or the numerous events during Homecoming Week, which were sponsored by student council, students could choose from a variety of outlets for their hobbies.

"Being the president of Chargettes has not only given me the opportunity to meet a lot of people but also become a better leader," Gayla Gray, senior.

Some organizations raised funds to benefit themselves but most of them sought to support the community. Such endeavors included contributing to the United Way fund, sponsoring a family at Thanksgiving, or assisting the Kiwanis or Rotary Clubs.

Organizations, thus, allowed students to vent their concerns and pursue their interests. They also accented the history of McClintock High School.

Efforts for Trip Dominate Band's Outstanding Year

Charger Band worked hard in their efforts to attend and compete in the San Francisco World of Music Festival Organization. Each member had to earn 50.00.

Organization and an early start were the main keys to the 77 members' success. "The band was more organized this year than in the past, which created more strength in performances," stated Owen Allen, junior representative to Band Council.

First fundraising events included selling bonus books and working at the A.S.U. Sun Devil and Arizona Wranglers games. Candy sales, carwashes, and "Rent-a-Band" comprised other fundraisers. Good leadership by the Band Council and drum majorettes, Laurie Rowan and Rochelle Elliot contributed to the band's enthusiasm.

In November, the band travelled to Band Day at A.S.U., and later participated in state marching festivals.

"This band has been exceptional in both numbers and expertise," stated Mr. Stoll.

On Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays they practiced with the pom and flag lines.

Mr. Stoll cited several seniors for outstanding service to the band. These included Gordon Craig, Craig Harry, Robin Swanson, Don Smith, Andy Donlevy, Paul Lidberg, Arnold Cornejo, Kirsten Haried, Allen Bennett, Joey Parks, Laurie Rowan, and Mark Wilkinson. They designed the drills and rehearsed them for the senior show at Homecoming.

The performing uniforms for the flag line were made by Anna Duich. She spent approximately one month making 22 outfits. Each member had to pay a total amount of $37.00 for the uniforms, which can be changed into five different outfits, according to the particular occasions.

Mixture of Talents Results in Creative Performances

By impersonating the Batman characters, Kim Liberante, Suzy Hinds and Lynne Duke enhance the crowd with their presentation of a Charger victory.

Versatility proved the key to the '84 cheer line's performances. The members of the squad varied in talents. Michelle Corley contributed her gymnastic skills to warrant the extra cheering of the crowd. Senior co-captains Roxanne Ivory and Jillene Lofgreen choreographed most of the dances.

Skits required a team effort, but each girl helped plan them and chose characters to portray.

"The girls have the desire to be the best representatives of school spirit that they can be and they don't do things half way. They're professional in guiding and leading school spirit," said Carolyn Cooke, first year sponsor.

Summertime demanded countless hours of deep preparation for the on-coming football and basketball seasons. This included the cheer camp they attended in Flagstaff. "We won the Ambassador Award which was voted on by the other squads. It's like a friendship award," stated Lynne Duke senior.

Regenerating Enthusiasm Proves Primary Objective

Although the JV and frosh football teams began their season with losses to Marcos de Niza, this challenged the JV and frosh cheerleaders in creating more pre-game enthusiasm and excitement. The squads prepared spirit boxes for the players, painted posters and performed at pep rallies in order to regenerate the team's morale.

Aside from these duties, the squads raised money by selling red and blue shakers and spirit ribbons. The cheerlines also had to purchase their game and pep rally uniforms.

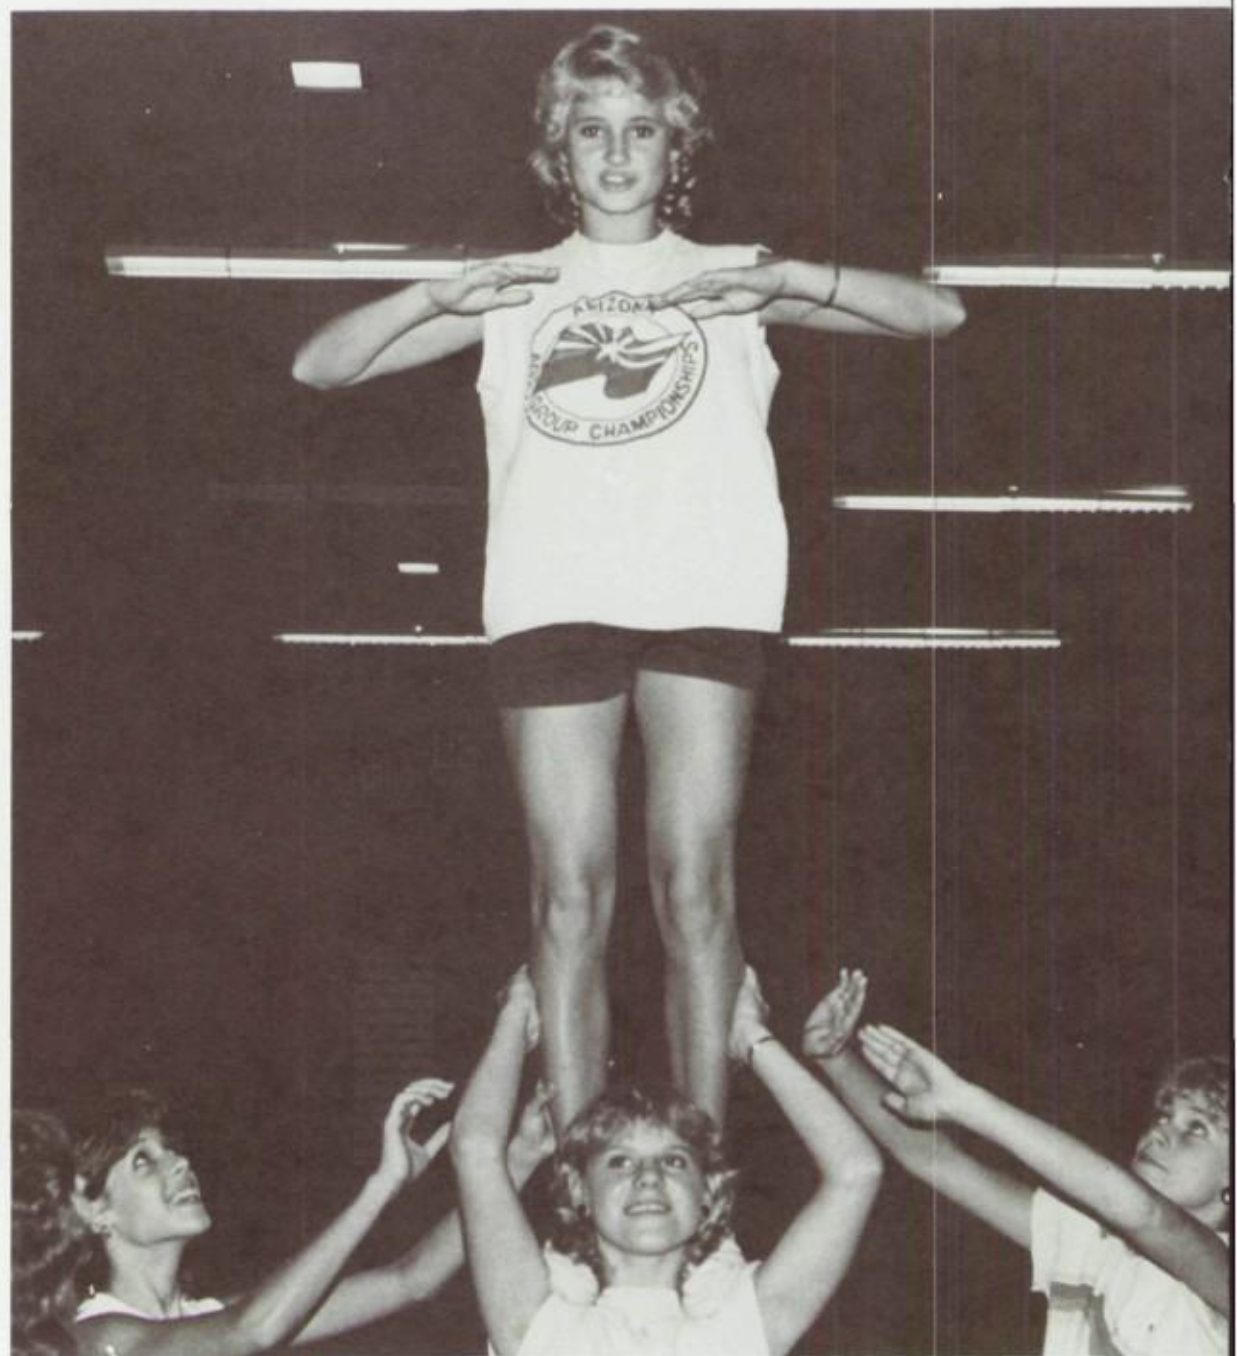

To prepare for their strenuous schedule the JV line attended the "Second to None" Camp at NAU in Flagstaff and garnered various trophies and ribbons.

"The JV line is very enthusiastic and very devoted to making their line outstanding. They worked diligently all summer and have continued to do so since school started. As a result they are a very close knit group," said Carolyn Cooke, JV and frosh cheer sponsor.

Stefanie Cooke served as the freshman captain while Michelle Salado and Yvette Aguilar were the co-captains for the JV line.

Fundraisers Assist Students Both Abroad, at Home

Analyzing life in America, Laura Trivi and Lorna Pires head for their class.

Helping foreign students come to the United States and sponsoring students to go abroad proved to be not only hard work but also fun for American Field Service (A.F.S.) members. As their fundraising events, the club distributed balloons during Homecoming Week, sold candy, sponsored carwashes, held a rummage sale and sponsored a Halloween booth at Kiwanis Park.

Having seven exchange students visit the state and the school was a privilege for McClintock, as the limit for each school is four students. A.F.S. sponsored Laura Trivi of Italy and Lorna Pires of Kenya. They were able to choose between staying in the U.S. for either one year or one summer and live with a host family during their visit. "I liked Big Sur and camping in Prescott. It was a lot of fun," Pires said. She hopes to return to Arizona in the fall.

Carol Virgillo started the club last year hoping to expand the Foreign Language Department. She also wanted to motivate the students to travel and use the languages that they've learned. As a result, the club experienced a strong increase in membership.

As an international organization, A.F.S. boasts over 34 years of experience. "It's the experience of travelling to a foreign country that has a profound effect on the individual and also on the lives of the people they meet," said Mrs. Virgillo.

Katie Blackmore, two year member, said, "I've met several people who are neat to talk to, both foreign and American students. I have learned about some of the cultures and traditions of several other countries, and I've made several friends that I would not have met otherwise."

Senior Officers Re-Emphasize Past Traditions

There was more than just a change of advisement in the student council classroom. Policies, traditions, and procedures took on new meanings as the year began.

Before the start of school, senior class officers and student body officers met with Mr. Lyons to work on a play to revise school traditions. The group decided their goal as leaders was to constantly enforce varied traditions so other classes would follow in their footsteps. Lost traditions such as no dancing on the MC, standing during the Red and Blue song at pep rallies, and no freshmen on senior lawn were reemphasized to incoming frosh at an orientation assembly at the beginning of the year.

With the start of school the challenge of raising money was largely on the minds of student council members. With bills from previous years and with many expenses encountered at the beginning of the school term funds were very low. However, with profits from various fund raisers, the councils account rose dramatically. "I was really pleased when everyone pulled together to work at the Red and Blue dance and sold crowd caps. It seemed to be a great opportunity to get to know each other," Kenny Pilcher, Student Body President.

Karen Reid became the Student Council's new adviser. Mrs. Reid also teaches Arizona History, and sociology.

Aiding the Less Fortunate Prompts Extra Fund raisers

Aside from finding students temporary employment, COE (Cooperative Office Education) conducted several money-making projects to aid a less-fortunate family at Christmas. The club presented a single mother and her three children with a $100 gift certificate for groceries, a new outfit for each of them, and toys for each of the children.

COE prepared for their major projects all year long. The students raised $2000 for the employers' and students' annual banquet. The banquets relocate from year to year and take place in fine restaurants such as the Hyatt and the Biltmore.

The first nine weeks appeared to be the most hectic. The members held ten fund raisers such as candy sales, toastmasters, and sales of Christmas decorations. The only requirement to join COE included Typing I and Typing II.

Prust, Second Year Adviser, Takes Early Retirement

Students outline a chapter in preparation for the last test by Mrs. Prust.

Although the 18 member Home Economics Related Occupations club went through several changes throughout the year, they kept up the pace and reached the many goals set by club officers and members. One of the changes occurred when Mrs. Prust, adviser, took early retirement in December. Students were surprised and dismayed.

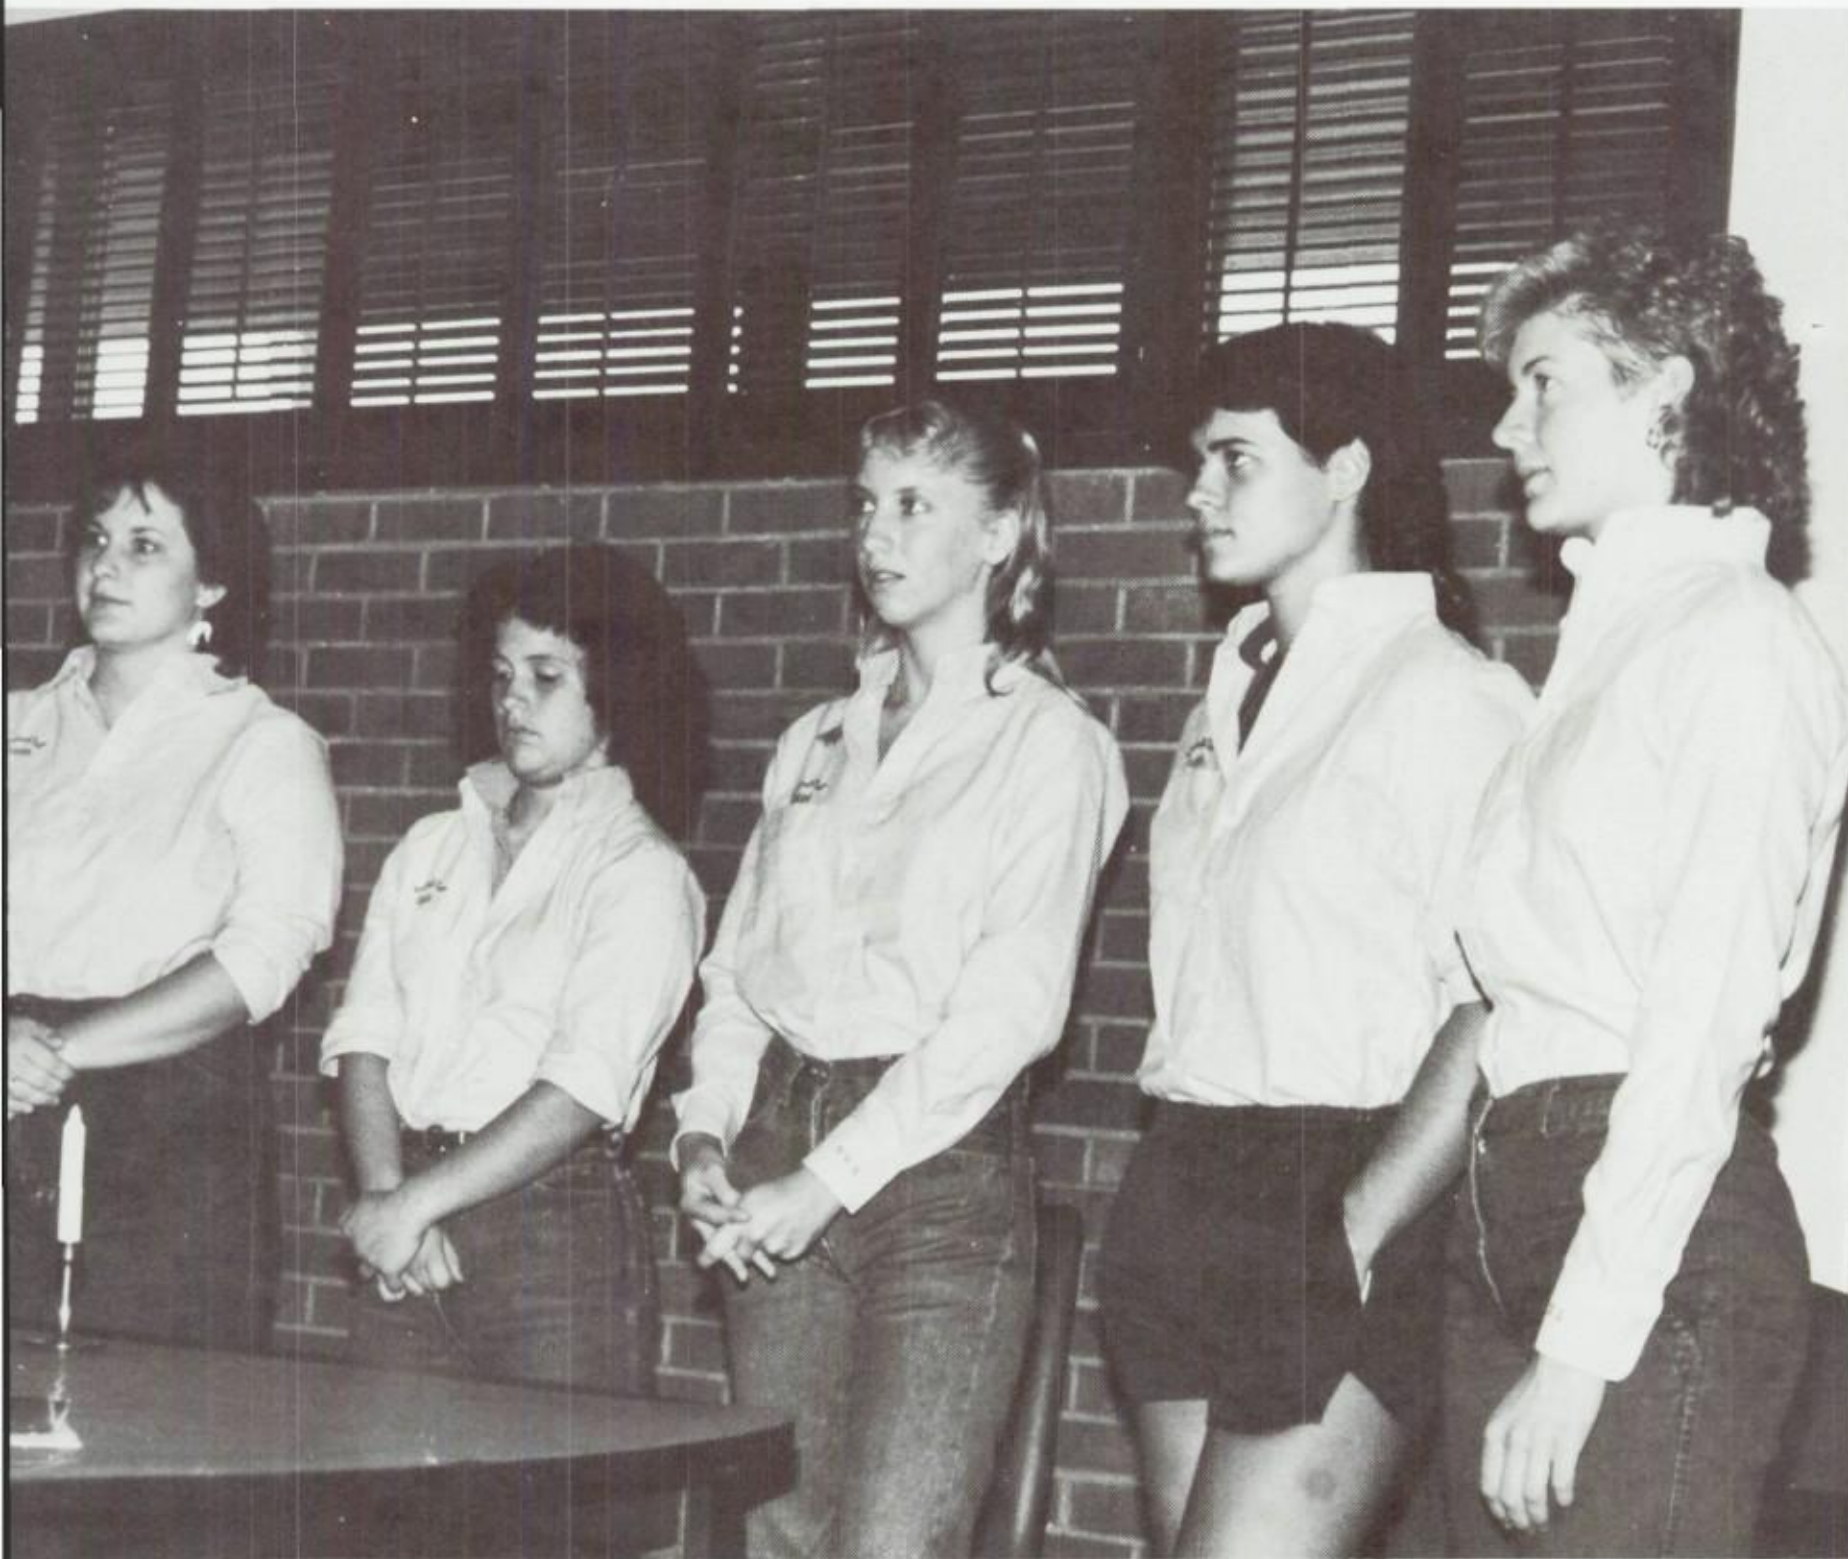

H.E.R.O. not only offered 3 credits to students, but also provided them a chance to get acquainted with the working world and give them insight as to what careers they might like to pursue.

Fundraising occupied a large part of the club's energy. Profits from candy, cookbook and bake sales benefitted students who attended the state convention.

Variety of Sales Augment Funds for Dance Costumes

At the Mt. View pep rally, the student body responds to "Red and Blue."

Modern Dance proved to be a way of exercising and improving grace and poise.

Instead of just dancing, the girls thought of ways to raise money for their yearly recital. They sponsored several fund raisers to help buy their costumes. Projects included selling key chains and sweatbands. They also sponsored a rummage sale at Park and Swap.

Another group on campus, Spirit Club also held numerous fund raisers such as candy sales and a car wash. Proceeds helped the members pay for busdrivers and for coverage in the yearbook.

Beside these projects they also helped pay for officials. One of their goals continues to be to increase membership in the club.

Industrial Arts Impressive 'Second Time Around'

Although McClintock has always offered Industrial Arts, it has not always had a club. The Club made its reappearance two years ago.

Meeting once a month, members discussed social and fundraising events. In September the club organized a weight lifting contest to raise money. The members also made several items and sold them for Christmas.

The Industrial Arts Club has been trying to join the American Industrial Arts Student Association (AIASA). This group organizes conventions for interested Industrial Arts students.

"I like to see them participate in activities other than class," said Si Gimble, sponsor.

Improvement, Incentive for Two-Year Computer Club

Even though the computer Club had been in existence for two years at McClintock many improvements needed to be made, according to Janet Cox, adviser. She wanted to see the club meet more regularly. She would also have liked to have seen the members tutor more of the beginning students.

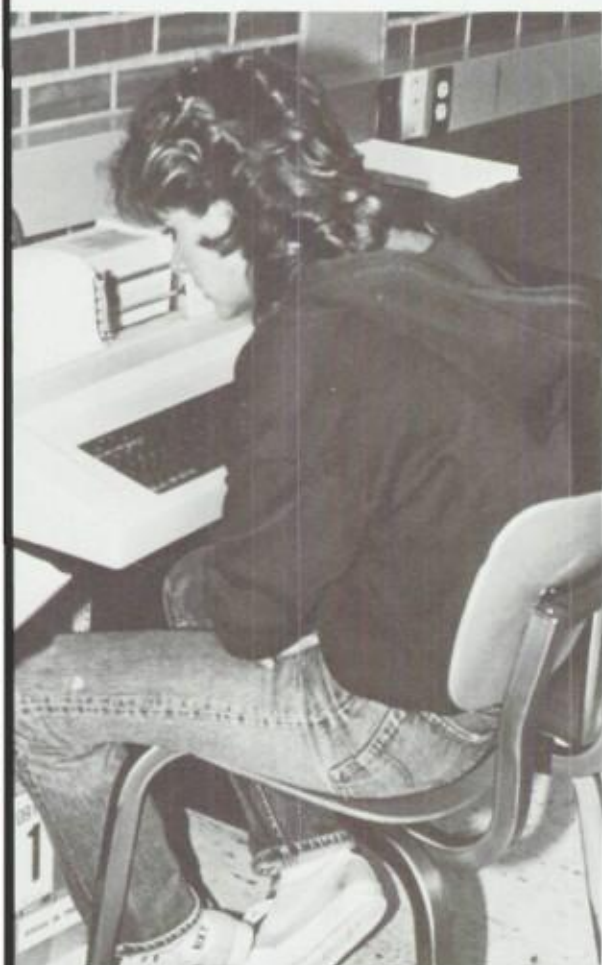

The club included twenty students. The possibility of tutoring, and field trips proved to be the two most important items on their agenda. Students also participated in several contests.

"The kids in this club are much better programmers than what I had taught them to be in many classes," said Miss Cox.

The students try to further the knowledge of computer systems through the sharing of ideas among the members.

Being a service organization, Jr. Civitan specialized in serving the physically and the mentally handicapped.

Ever since Jr. Civitan has been in existence, the main goal is to continue to work with the adult community. Consisting of 35 members, the club met regularly twice a month.

To raise money for the special groups in the area, the club organized an egg sale for the Special Olympics, and sponsored a bike-a-thon for retarded citizens. The club also sold stuffed animals to augment their funds.

"I enjoy being involved in the activities that I have with outside organizations," said Karen Jacobson, club sponsor.

Mrs. Jacobson has sponsored the club ever since it began. She could have welcomed more student involvement, but was pleased with the concern of the members.

Even though the orchestra is considered a class in the curriculum handbook, it is also considered a club. Many of the students who participate in orchestra have other extra curricular duties.

Orchestra organized many fundraising events, so they could go on tour to San Jose for competition. Each member had to raise a total amount of $350 by the spring. The group sold candy, cheese and sausage, bonus books, and held a car wash. They also sold concessions at the ASU football games.

Highlighting the year, students presented concerts in the fall, at Christmas, and in the spring. The group also attended three festivals during the year.

After three years of sponsoring the orchestra, Warren Dennis is pleased with the students who are involved. He, however, would like to see more students in music.

At the Christmas Concert, A Cappella and Chanticleers performed for the student body. This had not always been the case, as for several years they refused to entertain an unappreciative audience. Mr. Dennis, the instructor, was very proud of the students and the groups. "For some time we haven't had attention and support from the student body and it has changed a lot," stated Mr. Dennis.

The choirs had between fifty and sixty concerts. They included school, Christmas and spring concerts. Also, they performed for Civic clubs around the state and toured out-of-state in the spring. In addition, they participated in competition and held fund-raisers.

Students Hard Work, Talent Obvious in Performance

JV band members Alex Nunez and Derek Pang warm up before class begins.

During the first semester thirty five members concentrated in chords but during second semester emphasis leaned towards performing. Students practiced throughout sixth hour. "The musicians in J.V. band look towards being in Charger Band. We are extremely fortunate to have strong individual players with a bright future," said Greg Stoll, director.

They welcomed opportunity to enter class C competition and be rated as a troupe. Members received grades for their performances.

Throughout the year students presented four concerts. Also, at the end of school, musicians visited elementary schools to recruit for next year's J.V. Band.

For the third year the campus had a guitar class. During third hour, the group of 15 practiced daily. "The guitarists were the best I've ever had," stated Greg Stoll, instructor. Outstanding players included Tim Patten, 1st chair; Mark Perales, section 1 leader; Connie Menzel, section leader; and Christina Horne, section leader. In the advanced class, Mr. Stoll cited Shannon Hidenrite, Darius Burch, Larry Despain and Scott Rogers for excellence.

Many hours of hard work go into producing a play. Rehearsing lines, building sets, getting costumes, applying make-up, developing characters, and learning songs and dance routines. The Drama Department and Jim Fountain, the new drama teacher, contributed their fair share of work.

The department presented, "The Creature Creeps" with lead roles going to Pat Gwinner, Richard Israel, Jane Dahlgren, Jillene Lofgreen, and Jess Allen. They also produced a musical, "Guys and Dolls" with lead roles going to Jillene Lofgreen, Kathryn Sumners, Richard Israel, Jim McCook, Tristan Reader, and newcomers Brian Case and Chuck Hawley.

"We've had a good year. We haven't done quite as much as last year, but it has been quality rather than quantity," stated Jillene Lofgreen, Drama Club member and Thespian.

First Year Members Vote for Resort Opportunities

After a day at Purgatory, the ski club prepares to return to the hotel.

Mark Christensen presents the refreshment sale profits at the Letterman Club meeting.

"There is no set motto, but I would say the closest thing to one is 'Striving for excellence', said Mark Christensen, president of Letter Club. Meeting new people and fundraising dominated time for all of the club's participants.

Letter Club consists of 40 members who help raise money for all sports. Purchasing equipment and donating money to organizations number among the top beneficiaries of the club.

Money to support Letter Club came mostly through selling concessions at football and basketball games. Donations for the jog-a-thon and Sadie Hawkins dance also helped greatly.

Maintaining of a set grade point average and obtaining a varsity letter keep members proud of belonging to Letter Club. Many members of the club though, find it difficult to juggle all their sports and organizations.

"I would like to see involvement increase within the club," concluded Mark Christensen, president.

For the first year the members of Ski Club voted for where they wanted to go. Coach Slemmer, adviser, Scott Morrison, president, and Larry Steiger, vice president, helped plan and make trip arrangements.

Ski Club traveled to Purgatory over Christmas break and several ski resorts in Utah, including Solitude, Alta, and Snowbird during Spring recess.

"I want people to know that the Ski Club is open to everybody," stated Scott Morrison, president of the 85 member club.

One of the advantages of skiing with the Ski Club according to Larry Steiger was, "Going skiing with 50 of your friends for a week is the best way to go skiing."

A Decade of Progress Reinforces Ecklund's Optimism

ponsoring the German club for ten years, Terez Ecklund expressed excitement over the progress made. "This is one of our best years; all the members are very enthusiastic."

The club held their initiation at the beginning of the first quarter, Mrs. Ecklund served German food for the members. On December 6th, they held their traditional St. Nicholas party. "In Germany, everybody celebrates St. Nicholas' coming; Germans don't believe St. Nicholas comes on Christmas," said Mrs. Ecklund.

After the club received their tee-shirts, they held three fund raisers. They sold gummy bears, calendars, and for Valentine's Day heart shaped cookies. Profits helped them attend the annual convention held in Kingman.

McClintock's student body included several foreign students. Cornelia Mienzel and Hans Veilberth came from Germany and Bord Koppang represented Norway. "They mix well with the thirty-five members in the club," said Mrs. Ecklund.

One of the important goals of the club is to contribute to a charity every year. The United Way became their recipient.

Membership in the French club proved challenging. Carol Virgillo said, "I made the French Club harder to get into so that the upperclassmen would become more interested in the club. After the first couple of years, upperclassmen lose interest because it isn't challenging to them." In the meetings for example, almost everyone spoke French.

Members enjoyed several social engagements. Toward the end of the last semester they experienced dinner at a nice French restaurant. "The members have so much support this year," said Mrs. Virgillo.

Trips, Fund Raisers Highlight Honor Clubs' Schedules

In its second year the French National Honor Society composed of 3rd and 4th year students established two main goals: to aid students in speaking French and to raise funds for placement test costs.

During meetings students attempted to speak exclusively in French and gained knowledge of the culture through guest speakers. The honor society also conducted a candy sale and sold Easter-grams to raise money for advanced placement fees. Members also gathered for several croissant and coffee breakfasts.

French born Regine Muller served as president.

A three day trip to Hermosillo and Guaymas, Mexico highlighted the year's agenda for 28 National Spanish Honor Society members. During the trip, the participants shopped and enjoyed the beach as well as gaining practical use of their Spanish skills. Adviser Debi Clifton and Marisol Greenwald accompanied them.

Under the leadership of Annie Esquer, president, the group obtained money for the Mexican vacation through numerous bake sales at school and football games, and weekend car washes. The club also sold Christmas stockings and held their traditional holiday party.

Six Trophies Complement Speech Team's Endeavors

Fog and rain did not hamper the Speech team's desire to win in San Diego. Members brought home six trophies, the most ever earned by a Tempe school in one meet.

Having one of the largest memberships on campus. Speech Club displayed a great deal of enthusiasm throughout the year.

Susan Welch, adviser, welcomed all the students who had the desire to compete and to practice for a coach.

During the year members sponsored a dance, carnation sale, and car washes. They also participated in parties, picnics, and forensics with other squads.

Students entered scholarship contests, AIA and FLA team tournaments. Mrs. Welch cited the club's togetherness and the two presidents as the club's strength.

After donating money to United Fund, they planned to invite MECHA members from both ASU and MCC to speak to the group.

Goals of the club included the recruitment of more members especially boys. Meeting monthly, the group hoped to expand.

Staff Adopts Dimensions as New Name for Magazine

JCL—Using the Roman government as a guide, JCL (Junior Classical League) set up their council following the same format. JCL was offered to any student enrolled in Latin. The club supported students who put extra efforts towards Latin by offering tests that are judged nationally. Individually, the students ranked high. "For being one of the less active clubs on campus, it satisfies a few kids' interests," concluded Eric DiFrancesco, senior. Maurice Brill again advised the group.

Dimensions—Old and new prize-winning short stories, poetry, essays, and art work comprised the new edition of Dimensions. Each year this literary magazine offers prizes such as gift certificates for outstanding literary entries. English teachers and the fifteen members spent the beginning of the school year reviewing entries received by students. Entries reflected a variety of talents. Each year's new staff changes the title of the magazine to give the staff a more personal feeling of accomplishment. "We would like to see everyone involved in the magazine, not only the staff," said Ann Thiebert, adviser.

Chess—One girl, Bindy Smith, ventured on to join the all-male member chess team. Their ten meets were held in various locations such as Tucson, Flagstaff, and Tempe High.

Two year member, Alex Ching, successfully led the Chess team's first part of the season without the assistance of an adviser. Students Kevin Corre and Mike Kenison ranked high as individual players. "Anyone can play chess, but it's hard to be good," said Alex Ching, president.

Concentrating on arts and crafts satisfied twenty members' special interests. The Art Club differed from all the rest. Many students' talents created unique items such as Ukranian Easter eggs.

The club did not conduct charity projects or thrive on raising money; they simply emphasized self-satisfaction in completing personal projects. "It is important to have a club to meet the students' interests in fine arts," stated Pam Nichols, adviser.

During Christmas, colorful windows in front of the Art Department reflected the students' versatile talents. To display the students' commendable works, the club sponsored two spring art shows. They held one in the Boyle Auditorium, and the other decorated the Tempe Fine Arts Center. Professional artists judged items such as paintings, sculptures, and ceramic pieces. Outstanding students gained membership to the National Art Honor Society.

As a favor, and for a slight fee, the club silk-screened Tee-shirts for other clubs on campus.

Young Staff Members Inexperienced but Responsible

When there is a deadline coming up, the staff really pulls together to help each other; I'd say that we work well under pressure," said Stacy Sears, editor of the Guidon.

With a staff of only twelve members, each individual had much more responsibility than in past years. Not only was the staff smaller but also it consisted of mostly beginners.

"The editors of each page are experienced in reporting and can also concentrate on layout techniques which really helps," stated Patricia Muller, adviser.

The staff produced a newspaper every three weeks, with ideas for stories coming from staffers.

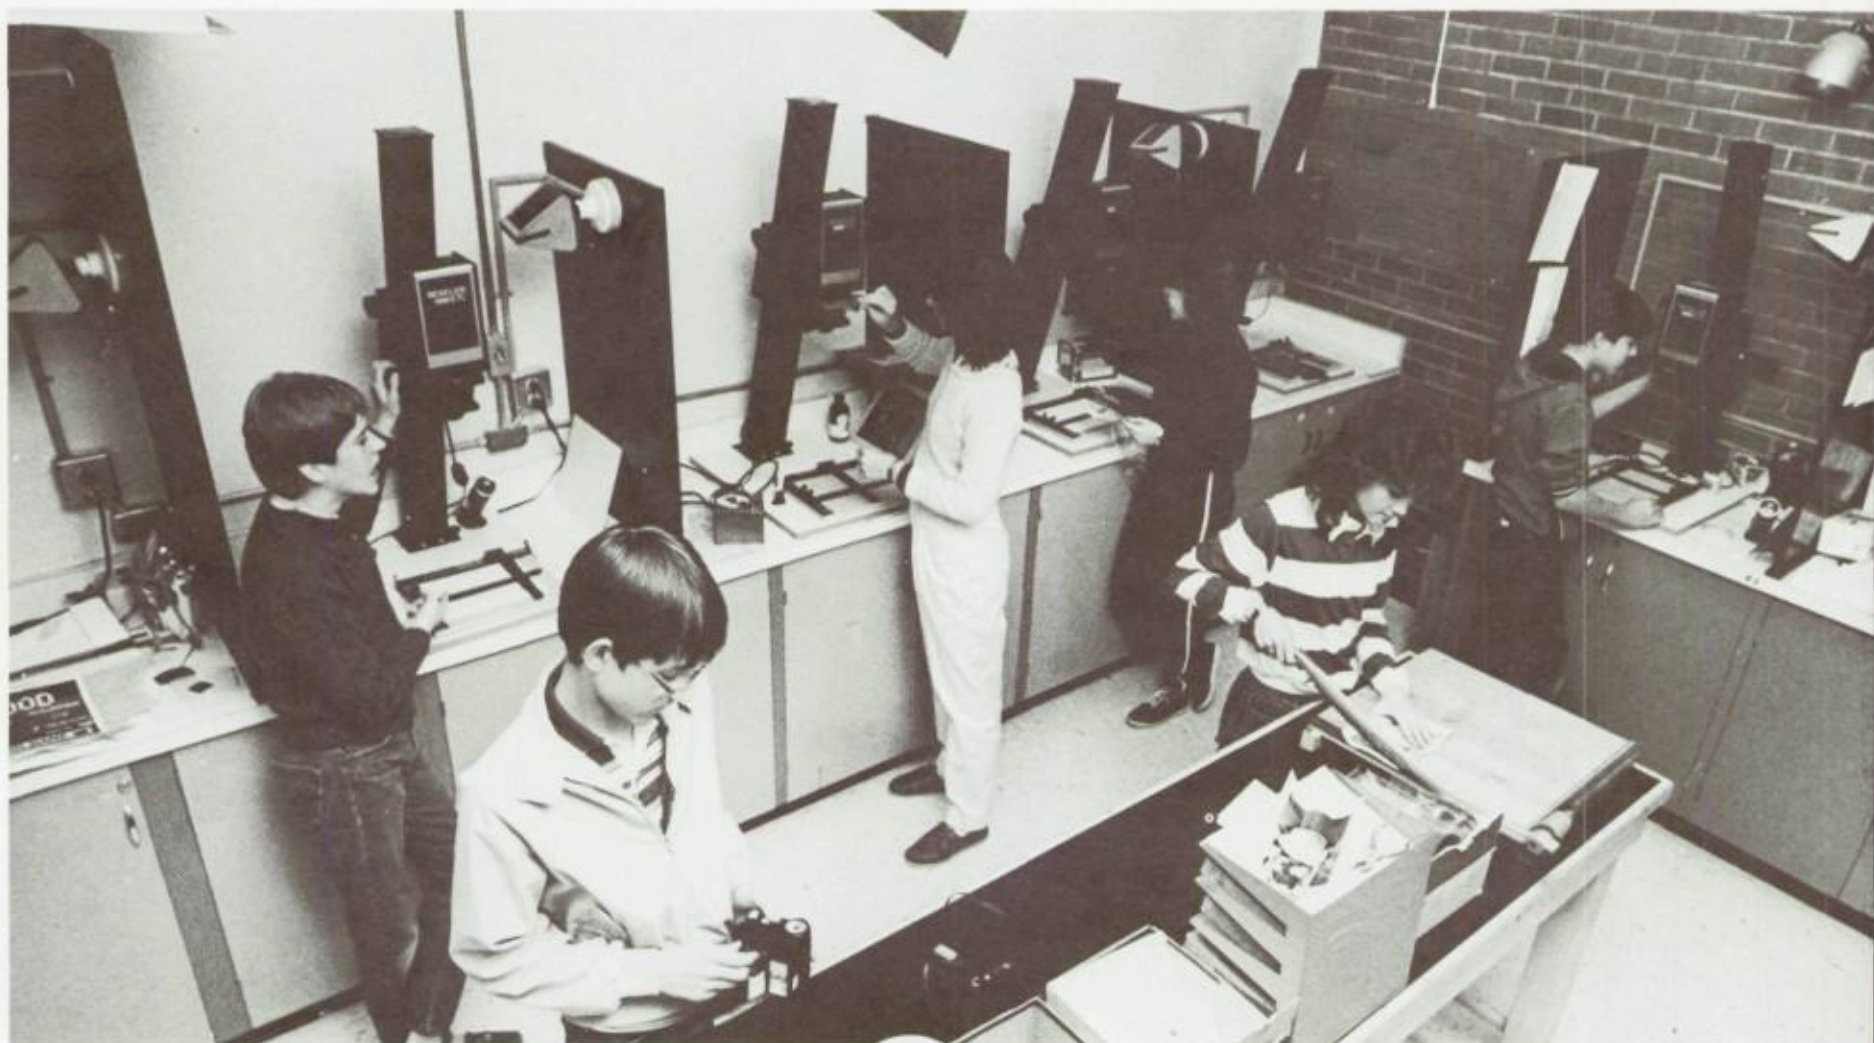

Several of Guidon members attended the AIPA fall convention held in Coolidge. "They taught us the latest in layout technique and design and in writing styles," concluded Sears.

Kris Ufalusi, business Manager, pastes up ads before her deadline. Eighty-five percent of the newspaper's funds come from advertising.

New Photographers Pull Through to Assist Yearbook

Accepting new photographers without previous screening hindered the photographers' first semester. Second semester took a turn for the better; production began to run much smoother as the inexperienced photographers learned and applied the special techniques in photography. "After an initial slow start, the photographers have really finished strong," said Roy Caples.

Assignments, such as taking action and group shots, developing film and printing pictures somehow seemed to occupy a great deal of the photographers' time which often imposed on personal time. They also contributed their help with the many fund raisers and the Coronation Ball. "It made me realize all the work that goes into yearbook," said Terry DeBarger.

Capturing and compiling the events of McClintock's special anniversary year proved to be a challenging and difficult job for the members of the HISTORIAN staff. With a small advanced class, inexperienced beginners and numerous beginning photographers, the staff lacked the seasoning of previous staffs.

But despite these shortcomings, the organization pulled together to meet upcoming deadlines and complete the 20th edition. The staff selected the theme of EXTRA! EXTRA!—The 20th Year to highlight the events of 1983-84 and to reflect on the past nineteen years.

"We chose the theme of EXTRA! EXTRA! because we wanted to emphasize the extra special qualities that our school has. Also we wanted to focus on the importance of the 20th year," said Neal Anderson, co-editor.

Aside from writing copy, drawing layouts and ordering pictures HISTORIAN staffers sponsored several fund raisers. Kris Vickery and Jennifer Perryman supervised the selling and delivering of balloon-a-grams during Homecoming week; Monica Vernon carried out the taking of Santa pictures at the Key Club Christmas dance. The staff also sponsored a booth and sold chili at the Mill Avenue Arts Festival. The money earned by these ventures helped to pay for correction costs and also to retain the book's 9 x 12 size. The staff also raised the price of the book to $20 to cover rising production costs.

"When the book is finally done and arrives it will be worth all the time and effort we put into it," said Sara Owens, co-editor.

Special Awards, Titles Recognize Students' Years of Hard Work

For some McClintock students, earning special recognition highlighted their school year, whether the honor or award was gained through an athletic, academic or musical endeavor. This special recognition paid off for the hours of work that went into the early morning rehearsals, the strenuous practices and daily homework.

Although some students received All-State awards or were elected as Coronation attendants, some individuals enjoyed various unique distinctions. At the Tempe Junior Miss Pageant, senior Debby Bouvier captured the Eve Crossman represented McClintock and the city of Tempe through Sister City when she travelled to Lower Hutt, New Zealand over Christmas break. In addition to their student council responsibilities, Sara Owens and Brad Conover served on the Mayor's Youth Advisory Committee as chairman and vice-chairman respectively.

Crossman, Jane Dahlgren, Richard Israel and Brian Olson served as commencement speakers at the May graduation exercises.

In-depth Topics Inspire Students To Join Anytown

During the summer, while many people were on vacation, eight students attended Anytown. These students included Sara Owens, Brad Conover, Patrice Bailey, Dana Duncan, Tal Anderson, Melissa Guaderamma, Nancy Dykstra and Rich Hoag.

Anytown participants studied and learned about various subjects such as leadership and prejudice. This was a seven-day event at Mingus Mountain.

Each participant expressed different views about what was learned from this experience. Guaderamma said, "The most important thing I learned was about prejudice and that I should treat people equally and not judge them on their appearance or heritage." Conover added, "I learned not to be afraid of meeting new people."

As Anytown delegates traveled north, another group of students ventured south for conventions. The Girls' and Boys' State delegates found their destinations at the University of Arizona in Tucson and at Northern Arizona University at Flagstaff. State conventions offered students practical knowledge of their government.

Delegates for Girls' State included Debby Bouvier, Eve Crossman, and Patrice Cabianca. Kenny Pilcher, Gordon Craig, Pat Gwinner, and Dana Duncan represented McClintock at Boys' State.

"Girls' State involved much hard work and the gathering of a large amount of information. But the lifelong friends I made and the knowledge I gained was worth it," said Debby Bouvier, who will return next year as Secretary of State.

Summer Voyages With New Ideas Intrigue Students

Spending a school year across the world to some people would not be appealing, but for seven dedicated students, it was a worthwhile experience. McClintock gained Baard Koppang, Norway; Lorna Pires, Kenya; Laura Trivi and Alexandra Martinez, Italy; Connie Menzel and Hans Vielberth, Germany; and Emilia Aravjo, Brazil.

"The main reason I took this opportunity was to learn about America and to have the experience of traveling abroad," said Koppang.

School systems and social activities surprised them the most. "I expected there to be many more discos and motorcycle speedways," stated Pires. The subject of school was brought up quite often in these travelers' conversations. "The schools in Norway are much smaller," added Koppang. "School here is easier and the days are much shorter. We went to school from 8:00 until 4:00 with 10 classes each day," said Pires.

While the school gained several new students, McClintock sent four students to travel for six weeks during the summer. These Sister City delegates included Robyn Benincasa, Kerri Gimbel, Kirsten Haried and Rhonda Moreland.

Benincasa stated, "It was a dream of mine to see Europe, and when I found out about Sister City it was like a dream come true. I learned that people are people with the same hopes, fears, and needs, no matter where they live. The Germans did have different ideas but deep down we are very much alike. I have found myself being more open with others and am more willing to give of myself," concluded Benincasa.

Night Festivities Honor Dedicated Bouvier, Parker

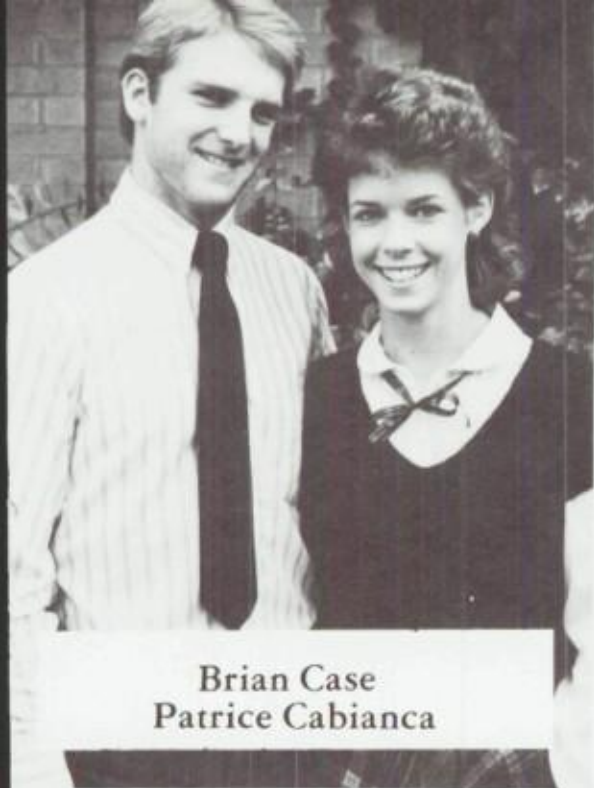

Setting the mood for the evening celebration, the floats and decorations produced by the student body accented the atmosphere. The theme, "The Pirates of the Caribbean," carried throughout the week, suggested ideas for floats. As the week progressed, many students participated in the lunch-time activities, such as, "The Boat Races," "Digging for Gold," and "The Rum Chug-a-lug." At the close of the week, the students celebrated at the traditional pep rally. The cheerleaders made a special presentation in honor of McClintock's 20th birthday. A decorated cake, large enough to feed the school, attracted many students at the end of the assembly.

"It was a good feeling to know that the student body liked me enough to honor me as king," stated Anthony Parker.

At sunset the excitement heightened as Homecoming reached its climax. At half-time with Mountain View leading, the crowds cheered as Richard Israel introduced the Homecoming court. Soon Debby Bouvier and Anthony Parker garnered honors as King and Queen.

Six Thunderbird classics of the late 50's circled the field honoring Miriam Huish and Shawn Giffin, 1982 King and Queen. Also receiving honors, Brian Case, Patricia Cabianca, Matt Smith, Sara Owens, Kenny Pilcher, Evan Crossman, Brad Conover, and Jillene Lofgreen comprised the Homecoming Court.

Going into the state tournament as the underdog behind Mountain View and Camelback, the boys' golf team earned McClintock's only state championship.

Alan Newman captured the divisional and state medalist golf honors, while Steve Rice and John Causey took third and fifth places respectively.

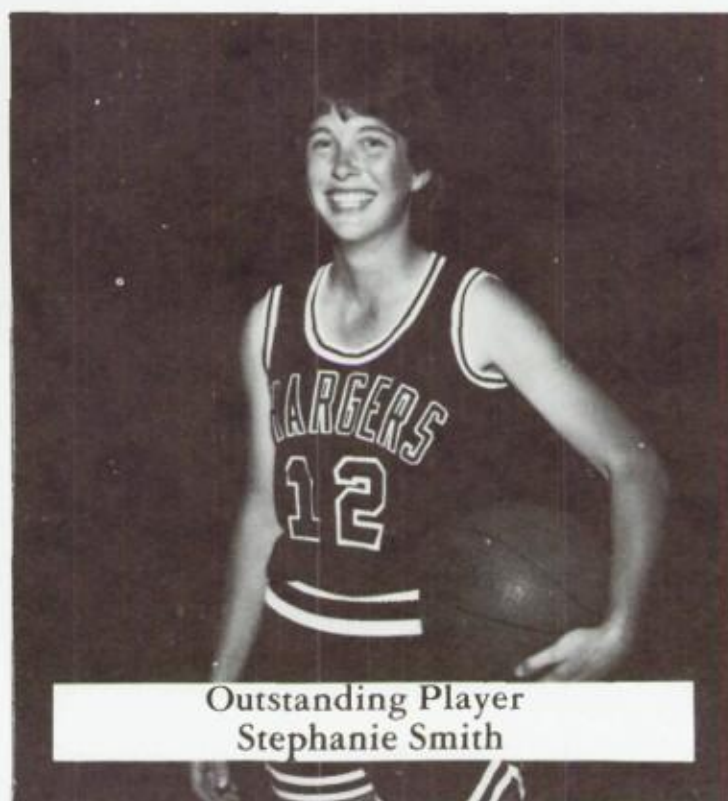

Darren Hollis and Matt Joganich, two of many on the boys' swimming team, helped earn an undefeated season. At the state meet, Hollis captured first in the 200 breast stroke and individual medley. In order to qualify for the performance at Camelback, participants auditioned at Central High School. Following this, all groups prepared their selections and put many hours of work into perfecting their music. The choir spent Friday and all day Saturday rehearsing for the performance.

The orchestra presented "Capriccio Italian" and "Jubilee" and the band played "English Folk Song Suite" and "Strike Up the Band." The band also presented "Cuernavaca," "Domine Filiugenite", "I Have Longed for thy Saving Health" and "Shenandoah" numbered among the choir's selections.

Following the regional performance, the participants auditioned for All-State at Marcos de Niza and sought to achieve honors at the finals in Flagstaff.

Historian Cites Dedicated Faculty for Years' Work

Throughout her existence McClintock High School has attracted numerous outstanding faculty members to her staff. At one time or another all members have been approached and tempted to transfer to other jobs at different institutions.

Five of the teachers on campus have chosen to remain at McClintock. The Historian staff has, therefore, decided to recognize these faculty members for being on the staff continuously since the school's inception in 1964.

These members include Mary Lou Duvivier, Vida Bernard, Karl Kiefer, Barbara Shepard, and Rose Duarte.

Mrs. Duvivier presently heads the English Department, and teaches freshman English and Junior English Seminar. Coach Kiefer, a Physical Education instructor, first joined the staff as a mathematics teacher. McClintock also has retained him as varsity football coach for twenty years. Mrs. Duarte teaches Freshman English, Advanced Composition, and British Literature. She has also been the only yearbook adviser the campus has had. Previously at Tempe High, Mrs. Bernard serves as head librarian, a position she too has kept since 1964.

The final honoree, Mrs. Shepard, is a counselor. Her efforts too have helped students with schedule changes, registration, and personal problems throughout the years.

The Historian cites these faculty members for their twenty years of dedicated service to McClintock High School.

Academics

Academic Excellence Remains First Priority of Staff, Administration

Throughout McClintock's twenty year history, sports and campus organizations have always retained popularity and gained much exposure to the Tempe community. Aside from aiding these activities, the faculty and administration have always kept education as a first priority. Each teacher utilizes his understanding and mastery of his subject in instructing the hundreds of students who sit in his class daily.

McClintock's curriculum scope has widened and includes courses in industrial arts, drama, human relations and computer programming. Because of toughened requirements, students must take more courses in English, math and history. These standards seek to improve further student achievements. A record number of students have gained recognition through the PSAT, ACT and CAT tests, and several students became National Merit Finalists. "McClintock has made a serious commitment to academic excellence," said James Lyons, principal.

"McClintock offers a variety of opportunities for academic excellence."—James Lyons, principal

Through dedication to academic distinction, students designed stage sets, wrote essays and performed experiments, thereby realizing the one major goal: to learn.

Waters Retires Thirty-nine Year Service Record

In December John C. Waters, superintendent, completed ten years of service to the Tempe Union High School District. Throughout his career, he was involved with education in Arizona for thirty-nine years.

The effect of the State Legislature forced him to arrive at his decision with mixed feelings. He stated, "I have said on more than one occasion that if one had to describe the ideal district to serve as superintendent, it would have to be this one."

Missing the excitement caused by the nation's concern for improvement in public schools, he expressed his sadness over moving out of his superintendency.

As for advice to McClintock, Dr. Waters stated, "I hope that the community, administration, and staff will continue their quest for excellence in education."

Newly Released Government Report Stresses Need for Solid Curriculum

Last year the government released a national report on the quality of education entitled "A Nation at Risk." The report charged American schools with losing sight of the basic purpose of schooling.

McClintock, along with all other Arizona high schools, have toughened standards and sought to improve their curriculum. This was a change which the Tempe Union High School District had been ready to make for quite some time. "As far as the toughened curriculum goes, I believe that our district was ready to move long before the report ever came out," stated James Lyons, principal.

The report zeroed in mainly on math, science, and communication, both written and verbal. In the Tempe Union High School District, starting with the class of 1987, a student, in order to graduate, must have two years (two credits) of math, two years (two credits) of science, and at least three years (three credits) of English.

"What we are really talking about is working together to devise a long lasting system that will benefit students and society; after all, that's what education is all about," said Mr. Lyons.

Throughout the past twenty years, McClintock has committed itself to academic excellence. Annually several students have received letters of commendation of awards from National Merit Scholarships. Last year, attaining unprecedented distinction; nine seniors became National Merit semi-finalists. This accomplishment, the highest number of semi-finalists in Arizona, ranked McClintock among other top schools in the state.

Also in order to upgrade the curriculum, Mary Lou Duvivier worked on a project called English across the Curriculum. This assignment will enhance most students writing skills beyond the English classrooms.

Science Teacher's Animals, Become Part of Routine

For most families, nineteen animals would seem to be a little too much to handle. This does not seem to be the case with Karen Glazier, science instructor.

It would seem to be hard to find time to take care of this menagerie and a family too. "I try to budget my time very wisely," said Mrs. Glazier.

"I didn't grow up with a lot of animals, but I always remember having some kind of pet, whether it be a dog or cat," said Mrs. Glazier. Besides the rabbits she takes care of at school, she seems to have a zoo of her own at home. Her animals include six cats, one dog, three rabbits, four turtles, two snakes, one tarantula and a very large fish named Oscar.

Mrs. Glazier's children always help out with all the chores. They feed the animals at night and she feeds them in the morning. "When I first wake up, I can't sit down to breakfast without feeling bad about not feeding my animals first. They make sure I feed them first before I walk in the kitchen," said Mrs. Glazier.

She doesn't have as much time for hobbies as she would like to. Other than being involved in activities outside school, she really enjoys reading and sewing. All-in-all, Glaziers' favorite animals are cats.

Student Needs Major Concern of School District

Six years ago, weighted grades made their debut in the district. Since then, the district has reviewed them to see if they are really meeting students' needs.

Most weighted classes include honors courses such as professional internship, and all of the English seminar classes. In a weighted class, students' B's were equivalent to A's in other classes. Weighted classes require more mental discipline by students.

Some people feel it necessary to monitor classes with weighted grades. "I think they should be monitored to see what progress students and teachers are making. I also think it is an added incentive for a student who is in a weighted class," stated Ann Theibert, English and professional internship instructor.

A rather involved process determines whether a class should be weighted or not. The application goes through various channels and must meet several criteria. A curriculum committee reviews the application and makes its recommendation as to whether the class should or should not be weighted.

Forty Students Ponder Necessity for Homework

Homework is something all students face whether they agree with it or not. The yearbook staff polled some forty students on their reaction to homework.

Of those questioned, who ranged in grade from freshman to senior, twenty claimed math to be single class in which they received the most homework. English came in a close second.

Although math got more votes for homework, more students felt that English was more difficult.

Out of the forty students, thirty-two spent one to two hours a day doing their homework, depending on the peticular day. Somedays their time ranged from three to five hours.

As for their easiest required class, fifteen named P.E.; students picked American History as second with eleven votes.

In answer to how important students felt homework was, six said it was a waste of time. However, the majority expressed that it was beneficial.

"A great deal of time is spent on busy work; this is work that serves no educational purpose. However, homework that encourages learning is always beneficial," said Brian Olson, senior.

First Hand Study of Government In Washington Benefits Students

A first hand study of the government benefitted those attending seminars and workshops at Close Up held in Washington D. C. Sophomores, juniors, and seniors opted for the experience. A one week non-profit foundation funded by the Allen J. Ellender (who is a late senator) Fellowship Program, grants, corporate and philanthropic sources, and the students themselves helped with the expenses.

Along with seminars and workshops, participants attended meetings with senators, representatives, administration officials, reporters, and lobbyists. There, they learned their stand on national issues.

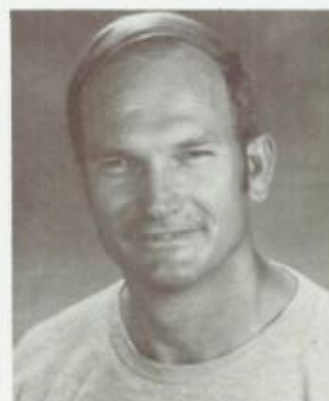

Students used independent activity time to pursue special interests, such as visits to the Supreme Court, the Capitol, and the Smithsonian Institution. The final day of the seven was labeled "free day" where students visited museums, shops, and enjoyed sight-seeing.

The cost to participants of Close Up, although partially funded, amounted to 60.00 included such things as airfare, food, lodging, books, cost of seminars, and security, essentially covering all costs except souvenirs.

Mrs. Karen Reid, a social studies teacher for eight years, was chosen teacher coordinator for the trip. She sponsored a Close Up Club to help the students interested earn the required money. Fundraisers included bake sales, candy sales, novelty item sales, and car washes. Also the club tried a mock filibuster, which earned the club one or two cents per minute for speeches.

The Close Up trip has been offered to McClintock students for the past eight years. It is also offered to all high school students in the United States. Approximately 17,000 American students will have attended Close Up between November and April.

Early Childhood Inspires Clifton to Study Spanish

Debi Clifton, adviser of the Spanish Honor Society, started speaking Spanish in her early childhood and began translating simple stories when she was only six years old.

Mrs. Clifton has taught Spanish for three years. This, however, was her first year at McClintock. She enjoyed her first year here quite a bit. Before she came to McClintock, she lived and worked in Madrid, Spain, for three and one half years. While there she attended a university for six months.

Mrs. Clifton studied Spanish for four years in high school, and four years in college, earning her Master's Degree. "Spain definitely enhanced my Spanish-speaking ability, and also gave me a greater understanding of Spanish culture and custom," said Mrs. Clifton.

She has enjoyed teaching Spanish, but is concerned that many of her students are good at written work but are weak in oral skills, speaking, and listening.

I enjoy seeing my students get excited about another language and culture. I especially like it when some of them go on later and travel in Spain and South America, using what they learned in my class," stated Mrs. Clifton.

Seniors Apprehensive About College; Many Uncertain About Preparation

After four years of high school, most seniors took time out to reminisce about their education.

Making the leap into college life appeared a serious one, and most seniors were aware of the need to be prepared for it. A smaller number of them felt that high school had prepared them well for college. Most of them, however, not knowing exactly what to expect from college, felt uncertain about whether or not high school had adequately prepared them for the leap. "Few students are ever adequately prepared for college. The changes are just too great," said Bill Martin. "I'm not exactly certain what I need to know before entering college," commented another.

A very high majority of seniors wished that, given the opportunity, they would have chosen different classes from the ones they took. Many also wished that they could have had more time to take classes that their schedules did not allow. Science courses and those involved in computers numbered among those they felt they should have taken.

Among the classes they said had contributed to them being prepared included courses in math, science, English, business, and foreign languages. "They are the classes most important to colleges. Most schools don't care about the electives, just as long as you have enough credits to graduate," said David Puffer.

Many seniors felt that attending college classes their last year would be very beneficial; they just didn't have the time for them. "Concurrent enrollment helps a student adapt to college life while being challenged," said Brian Olson.

So what will most seniors remember the most about high school? "High school is a very important part of one's life. The best way to remember it is to do things one will never forget . . . senior traditions!" said Bryan Martyn.

Endurance, Energy Key to Successful Athletic Endeavors

The hard crack of a bat, a basketball thumping on varnished wood, the splash of a swimmer as he dives and the frenzy of a crowd after a touchdown . . . These sounds have echoed from the fields, pool and gyms of McClintock since 1964 and have continued for 20 years.

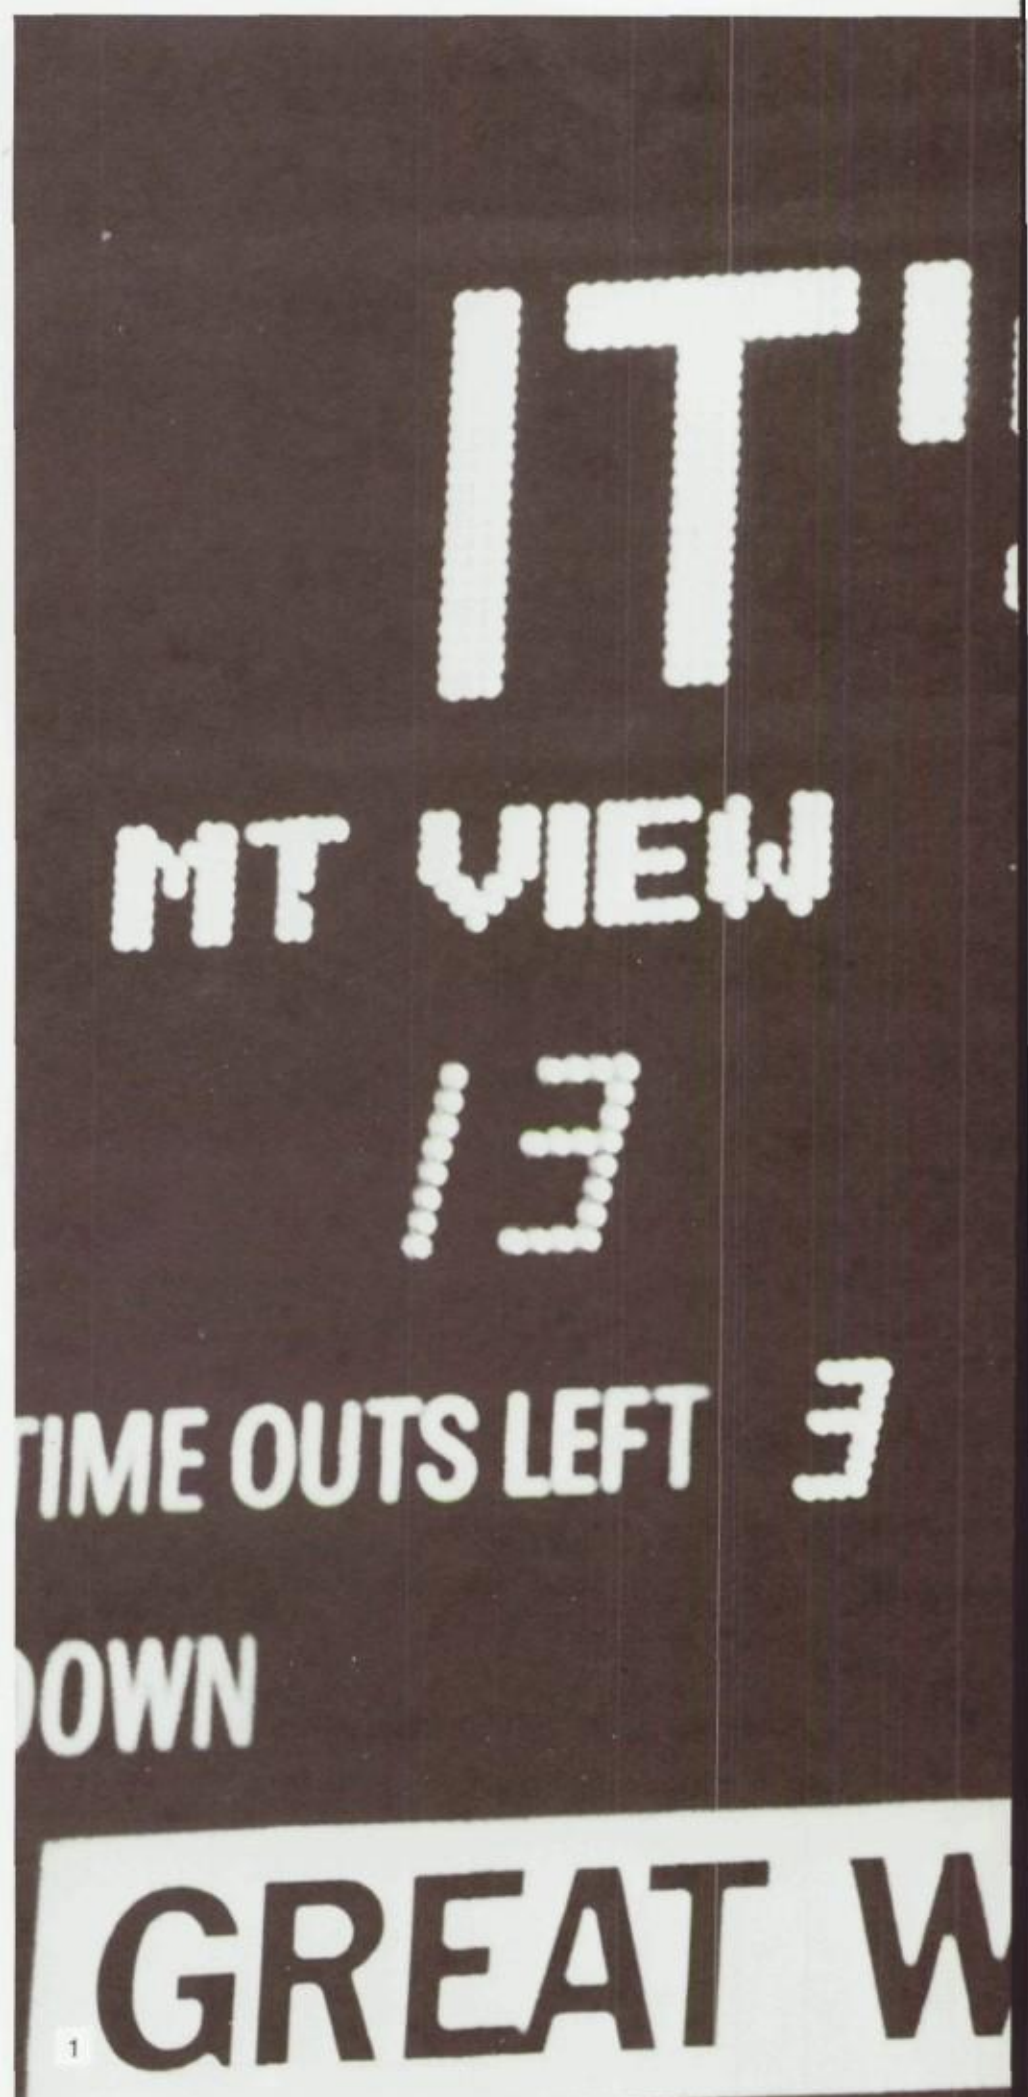

Besides skill and strategy, other factors such as a positive mental attitude, endurance and energy played a vital role in a player's success. With these qualities, Mac athletes, teams and coaches have captured state titles and numerous city and league championships in athletic endeavors.

"Playing on the tennis team has taught me to get along well with others and has kept me in shape."—Robby Johnson

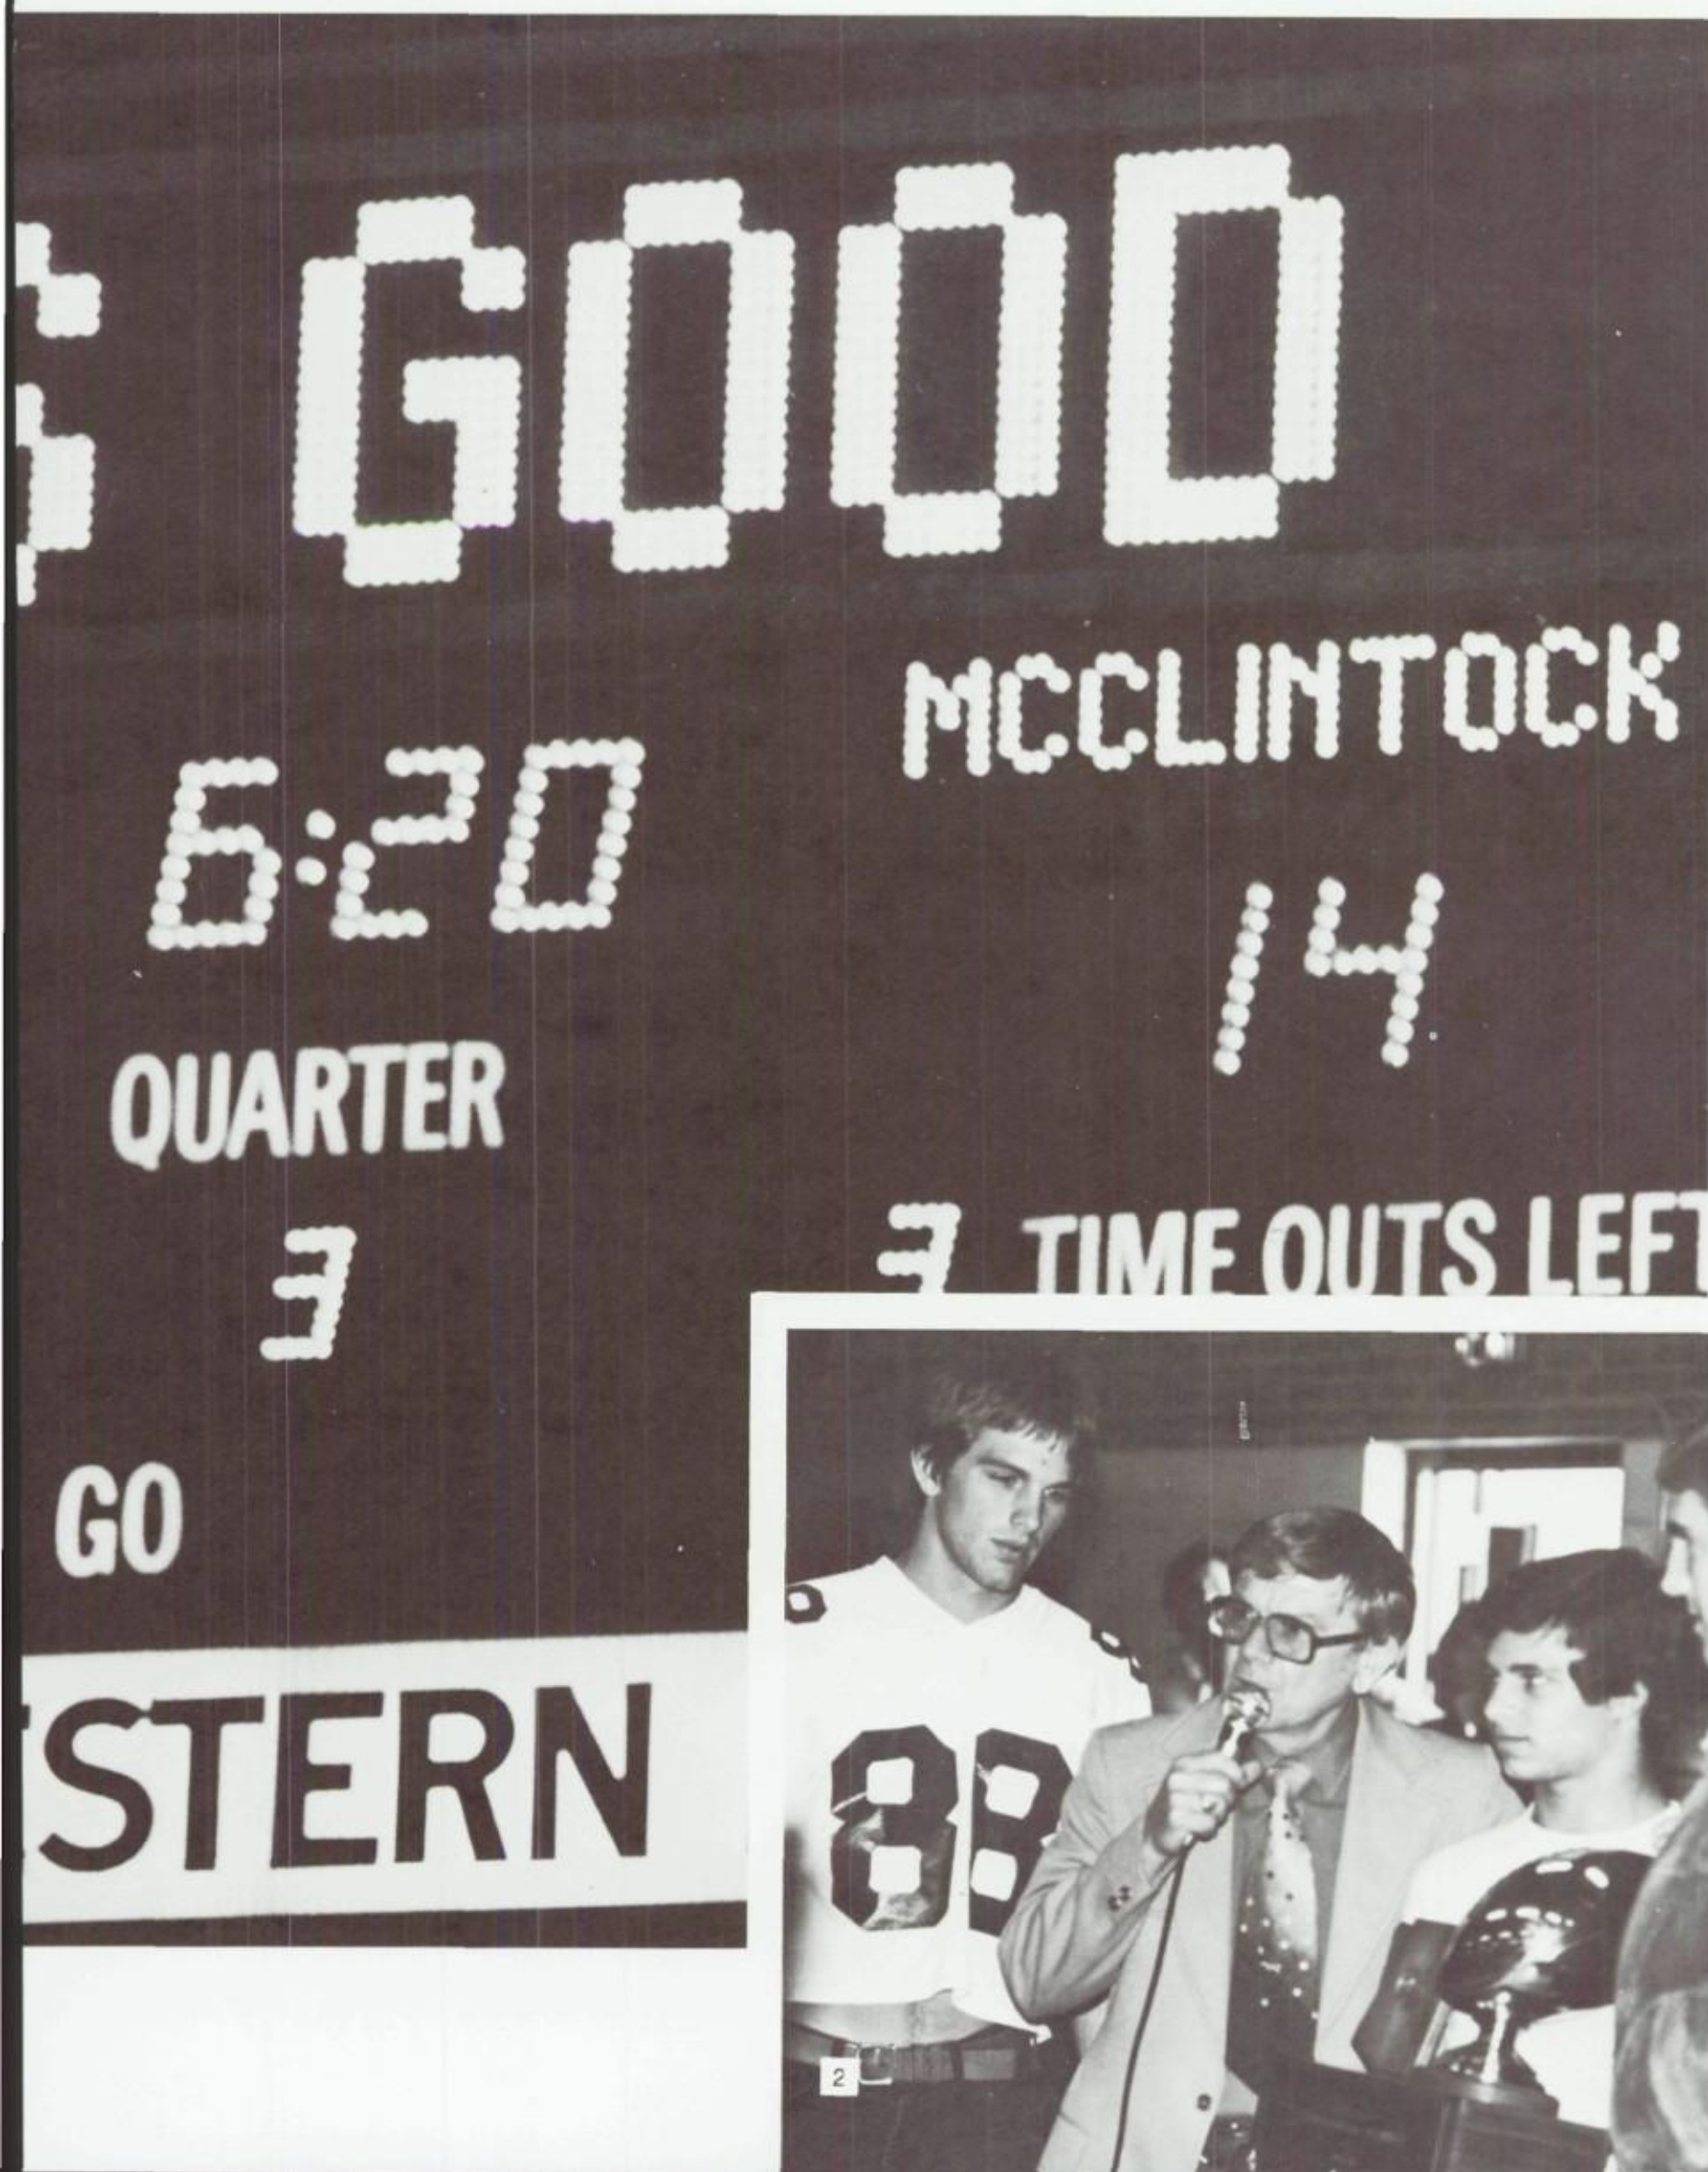

Student athletes have placed 1st in state, received all state honors and been recognized by local newspapers. With these exceptional athletes, boosters and facilities and coaches, McClintock maintains a powerful athletic program that strives to be second to none.

As a result of this incredible program, former McClintock athletes have gone on to compete in professional and college athletics. They possess that extra endurance that allows them to run that extra mile.

1. At the 3rd quarter, the Chargers maintain a 1 point margin over Mt. View. The team went on to place 2nd in state. 2. James Sosinski, Chuck Abbadessa and Jeff Case present Hayden Craig with the state trophy. In 1980, Mac earned the second AAA football victory in the school's history.

White's Assets: Eighteen Players, Brand New Bows

Consisting of 18 players, the archery team, coached by Kathy White, appeared confident throughout the season.

Their greatest strength proved to be determination to better their shooting score.

"In previous years our team's weakness was the poor equipment, but recently money was raised to buy better bows and arrows. So, now we are more competitive with other schools," said Coach White.

Julie Douglas, Carol Lu, Alice Ching, Julia Moore, and LeAnne Mitchell, who took tenth in the state last season, numbered among the team's archers.

The goal for the team was to win over half of their matches and break the team score of 20000.

In her sixth year with archery, Coach White welcomed the huge turnout of the girls.

"Archery is a fun and challenging sport and I enjoy coaching the girls," said Coach White.

Birdie Dances Provide Enthusiasm, Lead Team to Victories at Divisionals

At 10 and 0, the badminton team proved they possessed superior skills and positive attitudes that enabled them to set high goals such as taking divisionals and state.

The top six players Stephanie Smith, Michelle Aguilar, Ann Chandos, Sherry Curry, Kathy Cutler and Tina Saglimben, played in an invitational tournament held at Trevor Browne. The tournament included teams from South Mountain, Xavier, Cortez and Coronado. Participants Smith and Aguilar placed 5th and 6th respectively. Out of thirty-five participants, Curry and Saglimben captured fifth place as doubles team. "The invitational tournament helped to develop better skills at divisionals," said Smith.

Throughout the season, birdie dances provided enthusiasm before upcoming matches. Players danced around the birdie while yelling "win." "Dances psyched the team up," said Aguilar.

"We encourage each other to do better, and we all have pride in our team. The spirit is generated as the season goes on. We become one big family," added Ann Chandos, senior.

Depth, Ability, Height Push Team Towards Victories

At the beginning of their season, the girls' basketball team hoped to capture the titles of city, league, division, and state championships. At that time, this goal seemed highly possible because of the depth of the team. Coach Darrell Sheppard said, "I have so many good players, I don't know how to play them all, and keep them happy."

The team's numerous qualities led them to their successful season. "We had good over-all height and strength. We were quick for our size too," stated Coach Sheppard.

Another of these contributing factors was the team's experience. The cagers included experienced seniors with one all-league guard, Stephanie Smith. "Four of the seniors played a lot last year, and that's not bad," said Coach Sheppard. The team also gained some fine athletes from last year's almost undefeated, junior varsity team. Coach cited Smith as a good candidate for post-season honors and as a dominating force on the team.

During practice, the girls began with stretching, a factor strongly stressed by the coach. Running followed, and then on to drills and scrimmages. "The scrimmages helped me the most because they were closely related to real game situations," said Amy Howell, junior.

The team benefited from Coach Sheppard's eight years of girls' basketball coaching experience. Coach Sheppard stated, "Basketball is the world's most demanding game, so it takes a total athlete." For a girl, it also means she must get used to bruises, roughness, and skinned knees."

Stephanie Smith patiently waits while Coach Sheppard assists her before practice.

Twenty Players, Rasmussen Seek to Improve Record

Twenty players comprised the JV baseball team. Helping to improve last year's record, Coach Bob Rasmussen stressed drills at the concentrated practices.

Coach Rasmussen cited Corona and Chandler as their toughest opponents; both schools had exceptional freshman teams last year.

"I am hoping for a really good season record, better than last years. If we practice the hard things it takes to win, and continue to improve, we could be tough," said Coach Rasmussen, at the beginning of the season.

Outstanding players included Kerry Hunter and Mike Davis, pitchers. Ed Walker, Kent Kiefer, and Art Greathouse also contributed to the cause.

Assets of the team included the catching and defense, compensating for some of the players' reporting late to practice because of other commitments.

"I feel strong about the baseball team. We had a lot of fun but we still gave our best efforts to have a winning season. The team had a lot of excellent players. "If we all make the right plays and have very positive attitudes, we'll be successful," said Eddie Walker, at the beginning of their season.

"In high school baseball, all it takes to win is for the pitchers to throw strikes and the defense to make the routine plays. Offensively, your hitters need to contact and learn to steal bases," said Coach Rasmussen.

Two strong returning lettermen, Anthony Parker and Bryan Martyn played important roles throughout the season. Jeff Knoll and Rich Groppenbacher, handled the shortstop and Groppenbacher led the team in homeruns and both he and Parke batted 400 and 380 respectively. The team survived a pre-season injury to Dave Eske, a strong senior pitcher but John Zwart stepped in. Another replacement for Eske was Greg McEowen. At mid-season the team was 8-3 and 3-1 in league play.

The freshmen, however, did not hinder the JV's playing ability. "Although we've got freshmen on JV, they really know the game of basketball. By the time these girls are seniors, they should be some of the best in the state," said Coach Contreras.

The varsity basketball squad began the season like every team does with high hopes and expectations for a successful season. Despite these goals, the basketball team unexpectedly got off to a slow start, having a 1-5 record. The Chargers, however, sponsored a Christmas tournament over break and they proved to be challenging capturing fourth place. The other teams that participated were Arcadia, Corona, and Tempe. Tempe captured first place, with Arcadia coming in at second.

The young team consisted of three sophomores, three juniors, and six seniors. Six of these members returned from last year.

A couple of the players came out for the team late because of the extensive football season. "The boys work very hard," said Coach Zinke. "None of them are selfish on the court, and they display teamwork." He cited Jerry Pelley as an impressive returnee.

Strong Hitting, Good Pitching Dominate Promising Season

With a previous freshman record of 15-1, the JV softball team had a challenging goal to reach. However, the girls practiced consistently and worked hard on fundamentals. Their willingness to listen and learn exceptionally fast enabled them to be competitors. "They're a fun bunch to work with," said Coach Ed Contreras. The JV's, a strong hitting team, had exceptional speed on the bases. "Our pitching came along at a fast improving pace and was tough towards the middle of the season," said Coach Contreras.

Marnie Russell, Sharon Redman, Kim Renga and Heather Blower stood out as outstanding freshman players according to Coach Kevin English. With these athletes, the team gained excellent pitching. "They had good overall hitting," said Coach English. "Hard work and the ability to listen and improve make a good softball player."

Lack of Experience Hinders Team; Aggressiveness Important Factor

"Cross country running takes dedication." —
Bryan Cooperrider

"Running is our life," stated Coach Ed Contreras when speaking of the girls' cross country team. The girls' ran three to five miles daily regardless of the weather conditions.

The inexperienced team had only two returning varsity runners and few members who had ever run competitively. Coach's philosophy, "Have fun at what you do and at the same time work hard and push each other to do your best," corrected this inexperience. He added, "The girls have good efforts when they ran and were remarkably funny, humble, and bright."

Dedication, aggressiveness and conditioning numbered among the most important qualities for a good cross country runner to possess according to Brian Briggs, coach of the boys' cross country team.

The boys, also inexperienced, included only three returning varsity members and many young runners. "However, most team members would work hard," stated Coach Briggs. He cited Baard Koppang, a Norwegian exchange student, as a dominating force on the team.

Hard-working and technical described Karl Kiefer's nineteenth varsity football team. Having only fifteen returning lettermen, Coach Kiefer brought up six sophomores, the first time in McClintock's history he had brought up so many underclassmen. Sophomores included Kent Kiefer, quarterback; Art Greathouse, running back; and Cleveland Colter, wide receiver.

1 TEMPE 14, McCLINTOCK 13—This was the eighteenth meeting between the two inter-city rivals. The Chargers had won a total of thirteen games to Tempe's five. This Charger team had been labeled "a young team" and "very inexperienced" by several local newspapers. The game appeared to belong to the Chargers in the first half; however, the team struggled with the Buffalo's defensive blitz in the second half.

2 McCLINTOCK 49, MARCOS 26—Kent Kiefer's 27-yard pass to Rich Groppenbacher ignited the Chargers' scoring drives. Paul Fralin's and Anthony Parker's punt returns of fifty and fifty-two yards respectively and a 48-yard pass to Groppenbacher highlighted the Chargers' first home game and victory.

3 McCLINTOCK 38, MOON VALLEY 14—This game proved to be a "revenge" game. A year ago, the Rockets won 20-7 in their way to the state title. The Chargers, however, dominated this game allowing Moon Valley only 98 yards in rushing.

4 McCLINTOCK 61, CHAPARRAL 13—In the highest scoring game for the Chargers, Anthony Parker tied the record with five touchdowns in a single game.

5 McCLINTOCK 47, WESTWOOD 14—Anthony Parker's 55-yard run numbered among the five touchdowns that pushed the Chargers to their fourth straight victory. Quarterback Kent Kiefer went 8 for 17.

6 McCLINTOCK 17, CHANDLER 14—In a hard fought match, Sanchez Beach and Deke Schutes demonstrated that they were the "other" team for the playoffs. The Chargers, however, maintained a deeper desire and scored their victory.

7 McCLINTOCK 34, YUMA 0—Anthony Parker and Paul Fralin sat out this game because of injuries. This allowed WR Cleveland Colter to play the running back position for the first time. Art Greathouse's running and Kent Kiefer's passing helped score the majority of the points.

8 MT. VIEW 21, McCLINTOCK 3—The Central Division League A title rested upon this game. Since their opening in 1978, the visiting Toros had not lost a league game. The Charger defense held Mt. View to seven points in the first half. The Toros, however, did the same and held McClintock to only three points in the first and second halves.

9 McCLINTOCK 52, MESA 6—Following the loss to Mt. View, the Chargers did not allow Mesa to score in the first half. Anthony Parker scored the first two touchdowns of the night with a 60 and 71-yard punt returns.

10 McCLINTOCK 24, CORONA 21—This game determined whether the Chargers or the Aztecs would make the playoffs. Cleveland Colter's 31-yard TD pass from Kent Kiefer and Anthony Parker's 88-yard TD run sparked the last game of the regular season.

11 McCLINTOCK 27, MARCOS 10—After the second encounter between the two inter-city rivals, THE PHOENIX GAZETTE called this game the best all-around effort by the Chargers. The Padres held the ball three times during the first half and the Chargers only two. For the entire game, the Charger defense held Marcos to 30 yards rushing.

12 McCLINTOCK 15, ST. MARY'S 7—Anthony Parker's 94-yard touchdown run literally clenched the victory. McClintock's defense sacked quarterback Steve Belles four times.

13 McCLINTOCK 42, TREVOR BROWNE 14—In the state semi-finals, the favored Bruins scored first on a combination of running and passing plays. With the aid of a Bruin penalty and six plays later, Kent Kiefer's quarterback sneak tied the score at 7-7. A blitzing defense snuffed out the following Bruins' drives during the first half. The Charger offense then exploded with a 65-yard run by Anthony Parker.

14 MT. VIEW 34, McCLINTOCK 14—Many Tempe coaches felt Mt. View would dominate this game. The Toros' Dan Palmer began the scoring for the night. With less than two minutes before halftime, Anthony Parker's 1-yard run tied the game at 7-7. Prior to halftime, he broke his left hand. Rich Groppenbacher's 75-yard reception from Kent Kiefer marked the third quarter. After that score, the Toro offense exploded.

Forfeiture of Leading Players Hampers Team's Capability

At a practice, before a crucial game, Rod Blanton, freshman, demonstrates his aggressiveness. His teammates await to show their coach their ability.

In the first quarter at the Marcos game, Kevin Hunter holds the ball as Randy Rudolph attempts to kick an extra point. The Chargers won by a 28-7 margin.

Losing six players to the varsity team limited the ability of the junior varsity. Players such as Kent Kiefer, Art Greathouse, and Cleveland Colter, played an important part in the freshman team last year. They were thought to help the JV, but their ability permitted them to be on varsity.

Mountain View and Mesa proved to be JV's toughest opponents. "These schools always have good programs," commented Larry Faust, JV coach. Faust explained that these teams also obtained an abundance of talent which enabled them to be quite challenging. However, the Chargers demonstrated their talent and ability by taking Mesa 14-8. The final record of the JV's did not reflect the power of the team itself.

The final record of the freshman, 6-2, showed that the team had an abundance of talent and skill. The strongest quality of the team was their defense. Many of the teams they played never had a chance to score. The teams' toughest opponents seemed to be Marcos and Tempe. The freshmen however, appeared enthusiastic about their team. "It gave us a chance to work together and prepare us for the next three years of football," said Joe Palomarez.

Girls' Strive for Winning Season; Glass Succeeds Coaching Position

"It's hard work, and frustrating too, but it's worth it." —Traci Anderson

Facing numerous conflicts, the girls' golf team struggled to earn a winning season. Lack of experienced players comprised one of the problems and although the team consisted of seven players, only four had any experience at all. Another major change for the team was a new coach, Steve Glass, who replaced Dave Hatten.

Mr. Glass felt that the team did better than he thought they would. "Practicing until dusk everyday improved our game. Coaches Glass and Merrick assisted us with our form," said Tiffany Towne.

"We had some tough contenders, such as Xavier and Kofa, but we played our best against them," said Mr. Glass.

The top players, Robin Arredondo, Kelly Visser, Eve Crossman and Amy Florence contributed much to the winning season.

"I feel that positive attitudes have almost everything to do with a winning season; it took us a while, but we got there," concluded Glass. Traditionally, the team had a successful season.

During practice at Tempe Municipal Golf Course, Coach Steve Glass demonstrates the correct follow-through for a swing. He completed his first year as head coach.

Warming up for the Marcos meet, Robin Arredondo exhibits her driving ability.

Taking State, Earning Divisional Title Climaxes Season for Five Golfers

Five outstanding players directed their skill and energy in an effort to earn titles at the state and divisional competitions. This special team consisted of Alan Newman, defending state champion, Tal Anderson, Steve Rice, Trev Anderson and John Causey. They anticipated tough competition from Camelback and Horizon during the divisional matches.

"I think we have a good chance of placing very high in divisionals. Our team has some of the better players in the state," commented Tal Anderson.

Overall the team maintained a record of 17-3 (including those matches with more than one school). The varsity golfers defeated such strong contenders as Mt. View and Saguaro.

"They should be about the best team I've ever had. Our strength is in the five players and the best part of our game is our depth," said Coach Ray Knudsen.

Alan Newman credited Knudsen as a major inspirational force behind the team. "He really helps to motivate players and he helps maintain our playing ability," said Newman. "He always supports us, no matter what." Taking state was their payoff.

Depth, Freshmen Bolster Gymnasts' Performances

Many new talented freshmen and juniors assisted the gymnastics team to an impressive year. Only one varsity gymnast did not return to the team. More talent and experience was evident among the freshman girls than has been in the past.

Vigorous workouts for the gymnasts consisted of three-hour practice, six days a week. Adding two new beams allowed more people to practice at the same time. Besides the new beams, they also received new warm-ups and leotards.

Quinn Shannon, coach, cited Robyn Benincasa and Dawn McMenimen, seniors, as outstanding gymnasts with ten years' experience behind them. Also recognized was Melissa Guaderrama, junior. The three girls competed in Casa Grande Invitational. "I feel we have had a good season, because we had a lot of experienced and talented team members," said McMenimen.

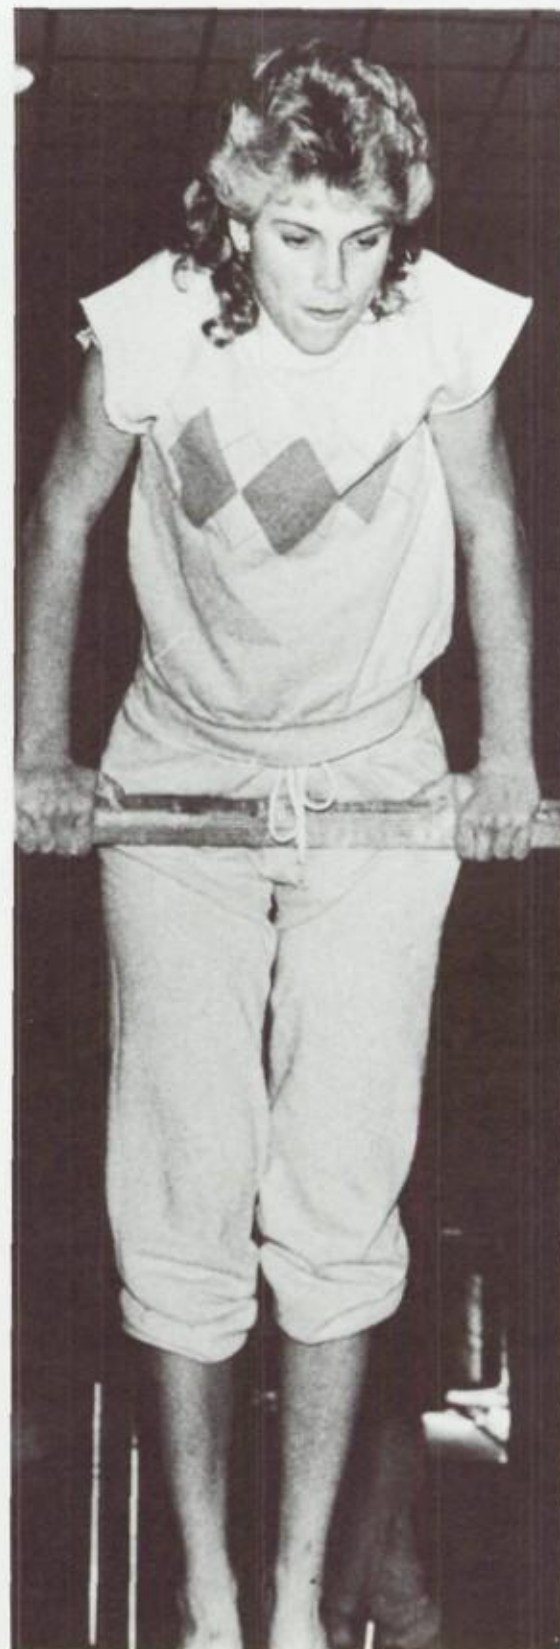

For about three months the team had meets, approximately once a week on Wednesday. "We would like to see lots of people come to the meets; it will be well worth their while!" said Coach Shannon. Many times at drawing held at the end of meets, warm-ups or tee shirts are usually given away.

Quinn Shannon, a gymnast himself, has been coaching for ten years. He has been at McClintock three of those years. The team feels that Coach has been not only an inspiration but also a credit to them.

Intramural Programs Accent In-school Competition

Intramurals provided athletic programs all year around for the student not participating on interscholastic teams. Competition within enabled players to compete among McClintock students rather than with other schools.

Weightlifting contests, basketball leagues, and racquetball ladders sparked participation by both boys and girls throughout the year. "Participation is the main theme, not just winning," stated Terry Barnett, coach.

Special events included a two-day golf tournament held at Shalimar Golf Club. No awards were given to the winners, just personal recognition. Certificates of award, however, were available for the participant who desired one.

Intramurals gave all students an opportunity to compete. "It is a great program. It gives the student a chance to do some school-related activities," said Jason Monkeliën. No attendance check meant no commitment for those students too busy for the interscholastic teams. It also enabled players to keep in shape for upcoming sports throughout the year.

At the start of the game, intramural basketball players battle for the advantage. League games were held in the gym.

"I feel this team will do better than any other soccer team in McClintock's history, partially because many of them are returning lettermen and have experience," said Bob Rasmussen, varsity soccer coach.

"The coaches helped us improve," said Joe Perez, first year player.

Enthusiasm remained high throughout the season. In the event of a loss, the players supported each other. "One could really count on one another, even if you did badly," said Gary Matsch, returning letterman.

6 Lettermen, Defending League Champs, Competition

Retaining the defending league championship title, the varsity softball team proved difficult to defeat. Having six lettermen from last year and several new experienced players, the team proved quite competitive against its opponents. The girls followed the same path as the previous year, winning both city and league championships.

The team worked out for approximately two hours daily when they didn't have a game. Grueling practices consisted of special drills such as throwing, fielding, and hitting. "We were an outstanding hitting team," said Coach Paul DiGrande. "Our players were very alert concerning softball situations."

The girls' attitudes led them to their winning season. They maintained a will to learn. "Practicing like they wanted to play in a game helped them improve," commented Coach DiGrande, who completed his fourth consecutive year as head mentor. He believed that being the assistant coach of the boys' baseball team helped him coach the girls.

After an effective hit, Hayley Gibbons, catcher, sprints to first base.

Before playing Westwood, varsity players psyche up for the clash. The team consistently exhibited their cohesiveness.

Although the JV team began with a 1-4 start, Coach Dowden and his team had a positive outlook for the season. "Winning, in my opinion, means success in helping each player reach his potential in performance and attitude," said Coach Dowden.

Coach Woodford cited Spencer Colter as his team's outstanding player.

Goals for the season included to enjoy swimming and for each swimmer to have positive experience on the deck and in the pool. "I hope for the team to go undefeated," said the coach. Bruce Brumbaugh, sophomore, commented, "I hope we can win divisionals this year. It would be the first time for McClintock, and we've worked hard enough to deserve it."

Coach Timpone cited Darren Hollis, Bruce Brumbaugh and Matt Joganich as outstanding swimmers. Joganich received the honor as being one of the top swimmers in the state. "I enjoy swimming on the school team because it gives me lots of practice and I strive for perfection," commented Joganich.

Teams Strive for Unity Along with Self-Improvement

Although tennis places importance on individual skill and discipline, the JV and varsity girls' squads chose team unity as their first priority.

Contending against tough experienced teams, such as Saguario and Chaparral, the varsity tennis team hoped to make it to divisionals. Many hours of practice enhanced the skill and form of the players. The use of the automatic ball machine enabled them to improve their coordination and agility.

"Tennis is really fun and competitive; the coach and players are just fantastic. I can't stress the fact that tennis is so self-motivating and action-packed," commented Erica Rosner.

Daily practices included challenge matches which allowed players to compete against one another for a higher position on the ladder.

Debbie Bouvier, a senior returning letterman, and Courtney Stark, freshmen, were cited as being top players. "The best part about being on the tennis team is practicing with a bunch of nice and talented girls," said Debbie Bouvier.

Many players felt the competitive aspect of tennis was most rewarding. "I think this year's team has a lot of personality and talent. These qualities make being on the team this year exciting," said Annie Esquer, senior. Through tennis, friendships emerged.

4 Lettermen, Impressive Records Strengthen Varsity

With a great deal of individual instruction, four returning lettermen, in addition to a JV team that was 11-2, Coach English prepared for a promising season.

The loss of David Cole and Terry Enweiler hurt the team. The greatest weakness, however, was the lack of experience.

"I have taught the value of hard work and concentration, and all the players are interested in working hard," stated Coach English.

Standouts included David

Carpenter, Chris Faux, Vic Le, Brett Rupp, Gary Sanders, and David Stark. Goals for the team consisted of developing sound skills in every team member and in having each player perform to the best of his ability.

"The reason I'm out here playing tennis is for the one-to-one competitiveness. I also want to hone my athletic skills," said Gary Sanders. Many of the players outlook for the season was optimistic. Most felt that they had improved vastly, and were looking forward to the season's outcome.

Good depth and the value of hard work, and concentration emphasized the positive aspects. Coach English praised the overall positive attitude.

Lack of Strength Hampers Season; Willingness Aids Determined Teams

Drills, strategy and conditioning set off the frosh tennis teams' assertive attitude. Their willingness to learn the basics strengthened both of the inexperienced teams. They began as the underdog in their first few matches against Saguaro, Marcos, and Coronado but their pride carried them through in later games.

Compatibility and dedication motivated the players. "We try to instill pride and desire to give 100% at all times. Beyond that, tennis really is a self-motivating sport," explained Coach Alan Veeh.

Coach Joseph Allred found it rewarding to work with the players and see them improve daily. Despite their lack of experience, he inspired the girls to win at least half of their matches. "I encourage them to develop a game that will bring them satisfaction," said Coach Allred. Challenge matches were held at daily practices. Round robins determined standings.

Sarah Marzke digests the strategical advice given to her by Coach Joe Allred.

Team's Leadership Strong; Upperclassmen Aid Timpone

Striving to break the 440 dash record, Heidi Walker races to the finish line.

Good team leadership and a willing group of upperclassmen aided Coach Tom Timpone's track season. With only one year's experience behind him, he put the girls through flexibility exercises, aerobics, weightlifting, skill drills, running and jumping.

Although optimistic throughout the season, Coach Timpone singled out Dobson and Westwood as their toughest opponents. A total of thirty-five girls tried out for the different events including the 800m relay, a new event.

Out of the fifteen events, Coach Timpone picked the discus, shot put and sprints as the team's strongest events.

Strong returnees included Sabina Steinbeck, discuss, shot put, 4 ▲ 100 relay; Suzy Hinds, sprints; and Heidi Walker, middle distance.

"Track is an experience every young woman should have at one time or another," said Coach Timpone.

Motto, 'to Work Hard, to Have Fun,' Evident on Crofford's Track Team

To work hard and to have fun proved to be Bill Crofford's motto, as he tried to inspire the track team. Practices ranged from 2 ½ to 3 hours daily. Strengthening muscles, increasing endurance and improving technique numbered among the many details worked on over their weekend. During their weekday practice, emphasis was on running, jumping, aerobics and overall conditioning.

Ten key seniors returned to give the team the needed experience. With Toby Crofford and Troy Korkosz, the pole-vaulting event remained strong. Four seniors, Mike Cuendet, Bryan Cooperrider, Eric DiFrancesco, and Kenny Pilcher, kept the distance events powerful. Another key athlete, Dan Harp, excelled at shot put and discus.

Mesa, Westwood, and Mountain View High schools proved to be the toughest opponents. Even though these schools were not lacking in the number of participants, the Chargers relied heavily on experience.

Among Coach Crofford's other attributes, he has coached baseball, wrestling and football. Assistants included Coach Briggs, distance; Coach Vitagliano, weights; and Coach Rehbein, sprinting.

Paul Fralin and Troy Korkosz, seniors, strive to improve their time during a 3-hour practice. Fralin also pole vaulted.

Steady Improvement Typifies Season Dominated by Inexperience

Every team anticipates and works toward a winning season; however, sometimes limiting factors exist. The varsity volleyball team concentrated on fundamentals, seasoning, and mental toughness. Coach Laurie Kohler said, "Improvement was incredible since the first week of practice."
"At the start of the season, we had no fundamentals," commented Amy Howell, junior. Coach Kohler corrected that with rigorous practices. These included stretching, flexibility, individual skills, such as hitting (spiking), net play, court coverage, and a balance of technical training and team tactics. Throughout the season, Coach Kohler's goal was to, "Do the best we can with what we've got . . . each player will maximize her potential."

Although the players realized Coach Kohler's goals, they were quick to credit her for the season's wins. "We wouldn't have won any games if it hadn't been for our coach," commented Howell.

Freshmen Cop Undefeated Season; JV Standing Proves Impressive

"Sportsmanship is a very valuable thing for a winning season."—Coach Darlene Lipovic

Becoming undefeated and having everyone develop her talents proved to be two goals of the JV and freshman volleyball teams. The freshmen attained both goals while the JV had an overall good season of 5-7. "Our record doesn't really show how good we were, and how the players developed," stated Mary Sarasconi, JV coach.

Running, conditioning and game-play situations dominated both teams' practices. Each session lasted approximately 1½ to 2 hours long, three days a week. Game days were usually Tuesdays and Thursdays, with an occasional Wednesday game.

Both teams had new coaches. Sarasconi worked with the JV and Darlene Lipovic coached the freshmen. "This is the first school team I've ever coached," commented Lipovic. She had previously worked with volleyball and basketball teams for Parks and Recreation.

"I really enjoyed playing on both JV and freshman teams. It gave me a chance to develop my skills even better," said Ann Rowan. Rowan along with Ava Dorset and Mary Shumway were moved up to the JV level approximately halfway through the season.

With nine returning lettermen, Chargers welcomed the experience for a winning season. Having daily two-hour practices the Chargers displayed the enthusiasm and willingness to learn.

This team prided themselves on their excellent physical condition (cardio-respiratory), in the knowledge of wrestling moves, and in the use of balance.

Chargers started their season off slowly, then proceeded on to the tournaments. Individually as well as collectively, the team placed high in their first two tournaments.

Out of a 16 team invitational tournament, McClintock took fifth place and seven wrestlers placed. At the Mesa Eastside tournament the Chargers earned sixth place out of 15 teams and five individuals placed.

Halfway through the season, however, Mac earned a 31-22 victory over undefeated Mesa High. In addition, John Szymanski took first place at the McClintock Invitational where he defeated a returning state champion in the finals.

Coach Johnson said, "We're looking for great strides in improvement with our best performance at the end of the season."

Strenuous Practices Help Prepare Team For Varsity

Coach Faust stressed competitive sportsmanship. During practice, Coach utilized half of the time for instruction and the other half for conditioning. The team's ultimate goal remained to compete on varsity next year.

When asked what makes a good wrestler, Coach Faust stated, "He must possess high personal esteem and a willingness to excel for himself, teammates, and school. He must be smart, physical, and be willing to sacrifice trivial things to be a champion."

Standouts throughout the season included, John Hankinson, Tom Larson, Robert Bass, and Randy Steiger.

Hoping to capture the city championship, eighteen eager freshman boys showed up for the first practice.

Coach Craig Thies felt the greatest strength laid in the lower weights, because of the experience. A lack of experience hindered the heavier weights.

"The freshman program will spend more time practicing as a team, separated from the other squads," said Coach Thies.

Historian Acknowledges '82-'83 Winter, Spring Athletes

For many years, McClintock High School had taken great pride in the tradition of producing outstanding athletic teams. To commend their great efforts, enthusiasm and dedication, the HISTORIAN acknowledges the results of the students' sports for the 1983 season.

B. BASKETBALL

For the first time since 1978, the boys' basketball team made the playoffs. An early loss to Westwood during divisionals hampered the Chargers' chance of trying for the state title. Strong players such as Jeff Gray, Jerry Pelley, Scott Briggs and Will Knight aided the total team effort.

GYMNASTICS

Although off to a bad start, the gymnastics team finished with a winning season of 5-3. Injuries at the end of the season, however, hindered their playoff hopes. Robin Benincasa and Amy Mills were among the top gymnasts.

G. BASKETBALL

The basketball team which had not missed divisionals since 1979, ended their season with a record of 15-9. The Chargers missed going to the state playoffs by losing to Tempe by one point and Corona by two points. Stephanie Smith set or tied seven school records.

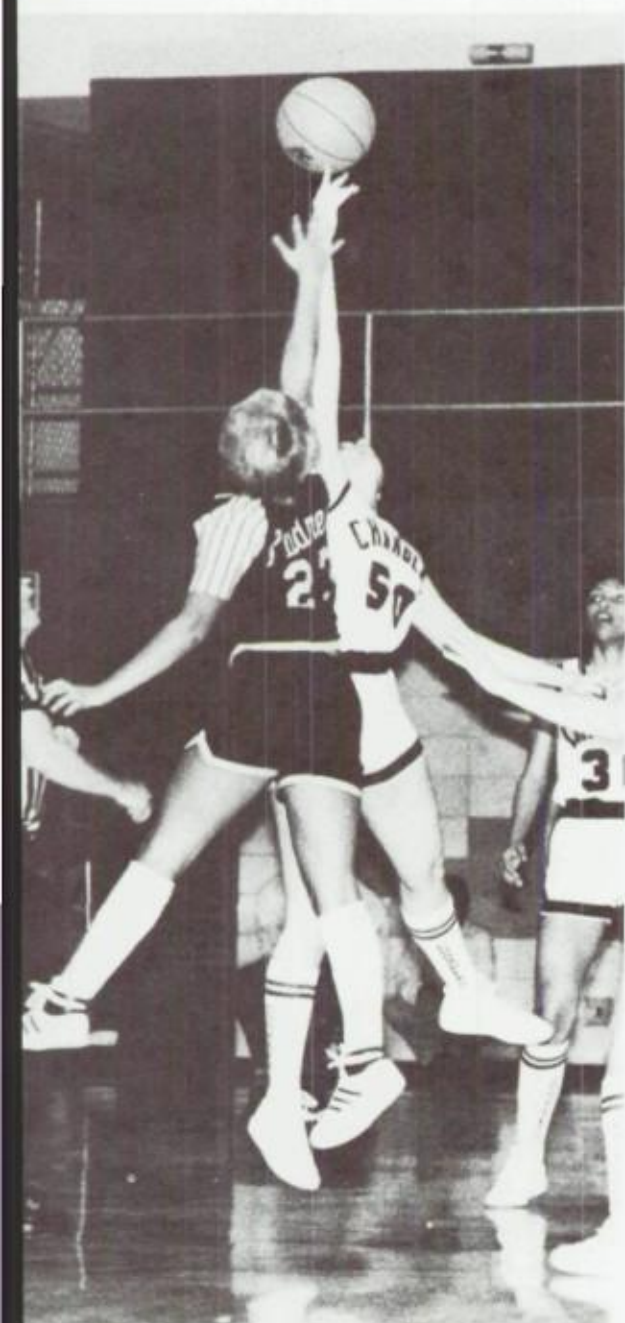

BASEBALL

Dave Mayhall and Paul Farina ranked among the players who led the baseball team to the playoffs for the second consecutive year. An early loss to Kofa in the first round, knocked the Chargers out of contention for the state title. Other strong players included Thom Peck, Matt Mittlestedt, Anthony Parker, John Zwark, Noe Estrada and Jim Crever.

HONORS

"Athletes of the Year" for each class included Robin Arredondo and Kent Kiefer, freshmen; Heidi Walker and Greg McEowen, sophomores; Stephanie Smith and Anthony Parker, juniors; and Debbie Wolfram, Arlene Burns, Shawn Patterson, Dave Mayhall and Dave Donahue, seniors.

Shawn Patterson, Dennis Owens and Dave Donahue joined McClintock's Hall of Fame.

EXTRA DIVERSITY

Classes

Individual Classmates Exhibit School Diversity With Various Projects

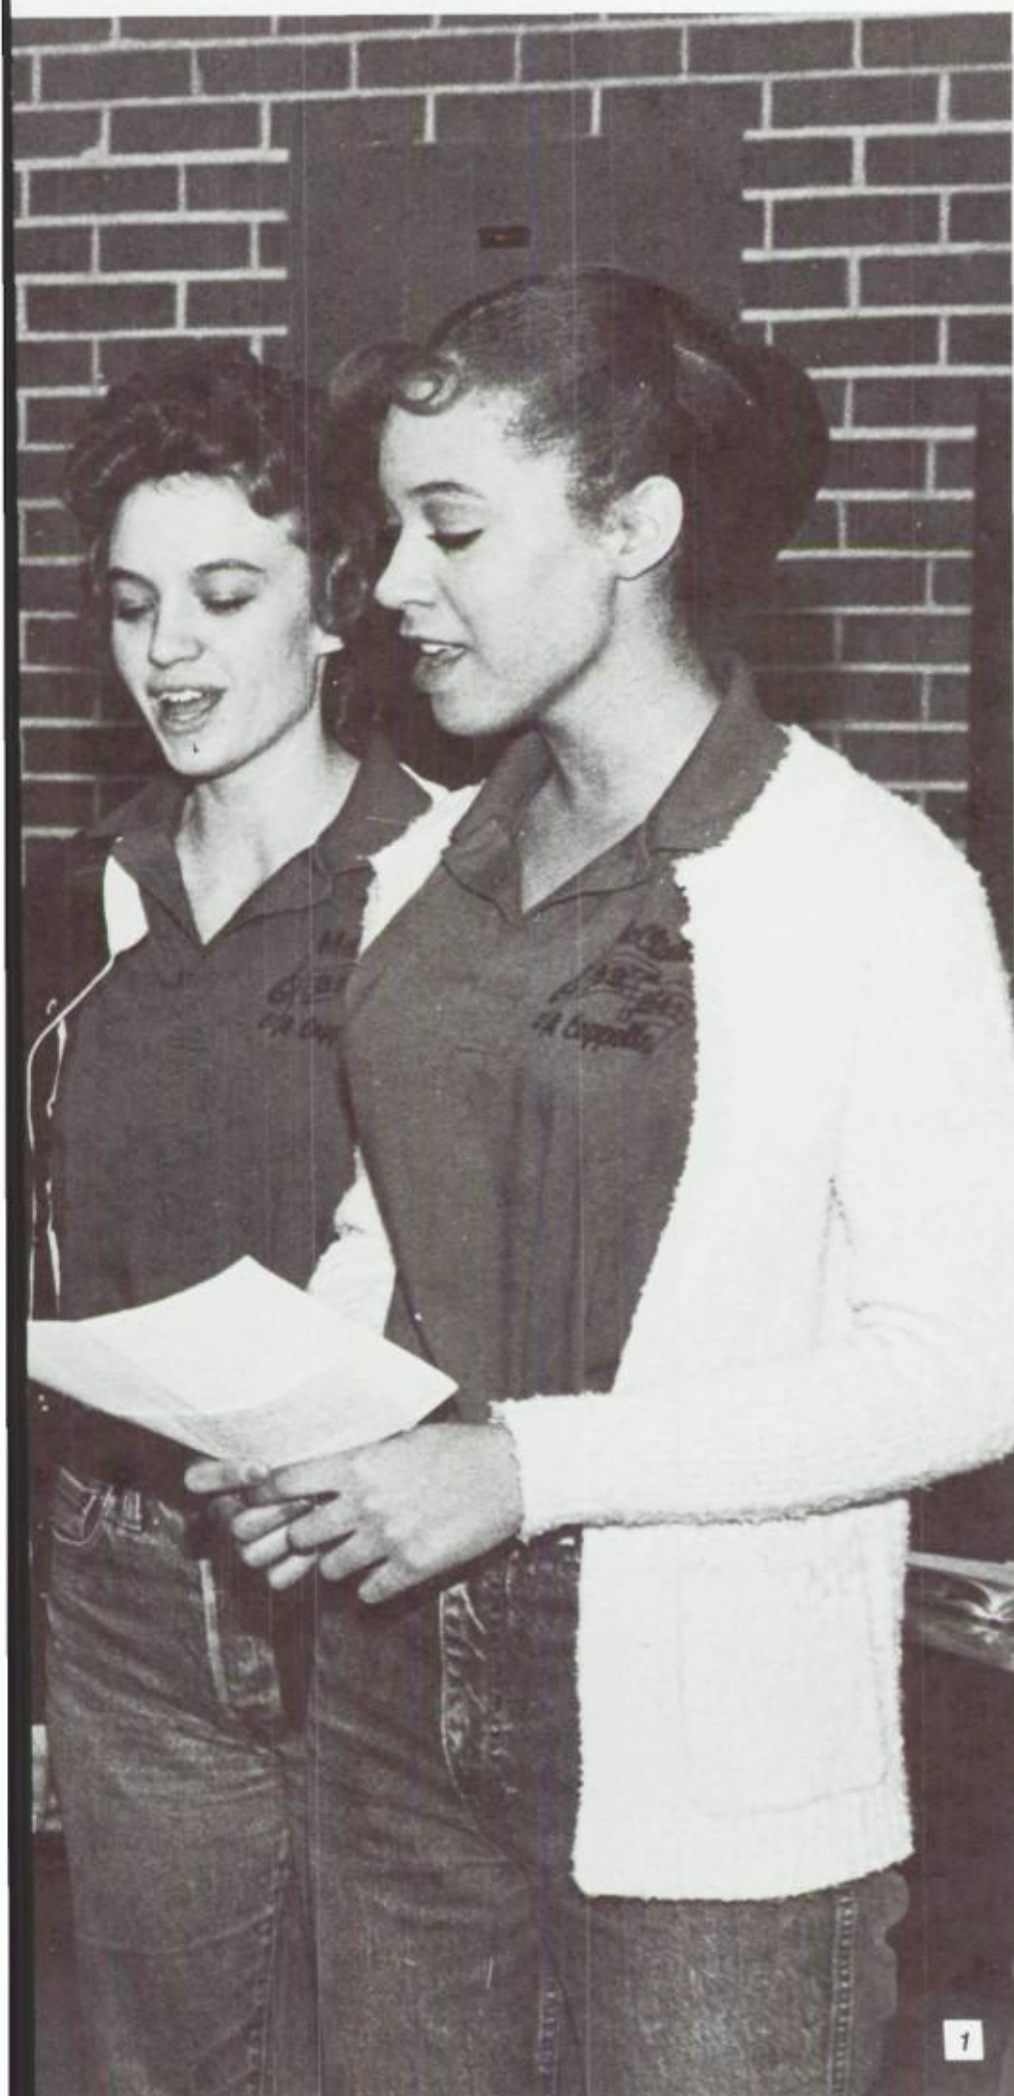

It was easy to get lost in the crowd of 1800 high school students, especially if you were a freshman. Elected class councils helped ease some of this uncertainty with orientation skits, pep rallies, and a welcoming committee. Also, with time, a relaxed atmosphere replaced tensions. Students began to feel more at home with their classes and new friends.

Each individual class had a variety of nicknames. These ranged from the "Heinz 57 class" to the "party class." A diverse cross-section of Arizona teenagers assembled daily at McClintock High. Although stereotypes were prevalent, each class managed to retain some of its own individuality with students exercising their freedom of choice.

"The students I have come in contact with are a vibrant group of young adults. They are enthusiastic, hard workers,"—Mrs. Ann Thiebert, English teacher.

Through a variety of projects, each class strived to become the "best" class ever. Getting people to uphold the traditions of participation and dedication served as the main objective for class council members.

More Opportunity Enlivens Seniors Best, Final Year

S-E-N-I-O-R-S, Seniors, seniors, M-H-S! The right to yell this chant at pep rallies had finally become theirs. Opportunities were broad and students began going "their own way." The majority of seniors found themselves working in preparation for college, future job goals, or even marriage.

With college planning in the works, students found costs of major concern. "I would love to go to an out-of-state college, but for the money, I can't afford to pass up an Arizona college," said Kelly Haukeli. SAT's and ACT's added pressure to individuals when the time came for the college required tests.

Some students found that along with their senior year came the need for a car. A variety of new vehicles appeared in the student parking lot as a result.

There was a decrease in attendance at the senior flower parties for the Homecoming scene. However, seniors did pull closer at the close of the week.

Apprehension, anticipation and many decisions flooded the minds of many seniors. Along with mixed emotions, students questioned their own individual growth. "I know I've changed quite a bit since my freshman year. I'm much more mellow and see things in a more adult light now," said Kim Little.

Israel Seeks Career In Public Speaking

To some, speaking before a group of people, regardless of number, can be a horrifying experience and has even been noted more fearful than facing death itself. Richard Israel is one such individual who has a natural ability for public speaking and can express himself with ease. He has molded his talent into a useful tool.

Israel begun public speaking his freshman year when he joined the speech team. He has performed in competitive events regarding both humor and duo-acting. Along with countless awards received in these categories, Israel took his speech on the elderly to the state finals in the Arizona Optimists Contest and came away with second place.

One of Israel's most noted accomplishments around campus is that of the band's half-time announcer. He also has announced the Homecoming royalty two years in a row. Having been accepted to Berkley University, Israel hopes to pursue a speech communications career.

"There are very few things in life that affect everything you do. Speech is one of these rare forms. With a speech background you will have a definite advantage in most anything you tackle," said Israel.

Four year speech team member Richard Israel hopes to pursue public speaking in his career.

Prior to divisionals competition, swimmer Jim Hudson concludes a long, exhausting workout and heads for the pool side.

Transfer Student Enjoys Distinction

Julie Allen, a 17 year old transfer student from Mingus High in Jerome, Arizona enjoys the unique distinction of being a married high school student.

Allen knew her husband Mark 1½ years before marrying him and describes him as considerate and helpful. In regard to her marriage, she particularly enjoys some of the freedom she gained as a wife. Allen knows her added responsibilities and as a sports participant, she has to juggle her schedule in order to get her jobs done.

"People, though, treat me a little different because I'm married. The girls think it's great, but the boys tend to back away," said Allen.

Some amusing incidents have occurred in regard to her marital status. On one occasion Mrs. Greenwald, her Spanish teacher, asked her to take a sheet of rules home to her husband who signed it.

Since boys found out she is married, she has received no more notes and they don't stand by her locker anymore.

Reflecting on her new campus, Allen said, "This school has so much spirit! The people are very friendly, although there are a lot of different cliques."

Stretching exercises aid Julie Allen before a Kiwanis Park run.

Academics, Sports Complement Smith

Being in school activities, carrying a 4.0 GPA, and participating in school sports did not appear to be enough for Stephanie Smith. She was not just an ordinary athlete. Her three best sports included badminton, softball, and basketball. "Of all the sports I play, basketball is my favorite," said Smith.

Coach Ed Contreras received the most credit for coaching and aiding Smith with her participation in sports. Aside from in-school coaching, he helped her practice in her spare time. Smith cited Coach Darrell Sheppard as also encouraging her.

Not only is her ability commendable but also her personality and attitude. "Her attitude is very good. She never gives less than her best. She is unselfish and committed to team goals first. She's an asset to any program she's in," stated Coach Sheppard.

Aside from sports, Smith maintains a 4.0 GPA which reflects her dedication to her studies. Her favorite subject is math and she plans to major in it in college.

Smith's participation in sports has been an asset for many seasons. "She is among the best natural female athletes to compete for this school in the last decade," said Coach Sheppard.

Trying to improve her batting average, Smith concentrates on her swing.

With Top Honors, Parker Focuses On Arizona State

For any athlete, being recognized for his talent and dedication is rewarding enough, but for senior Anthony Parker, his recognition consisted of eight of the top honors given to high school football players.

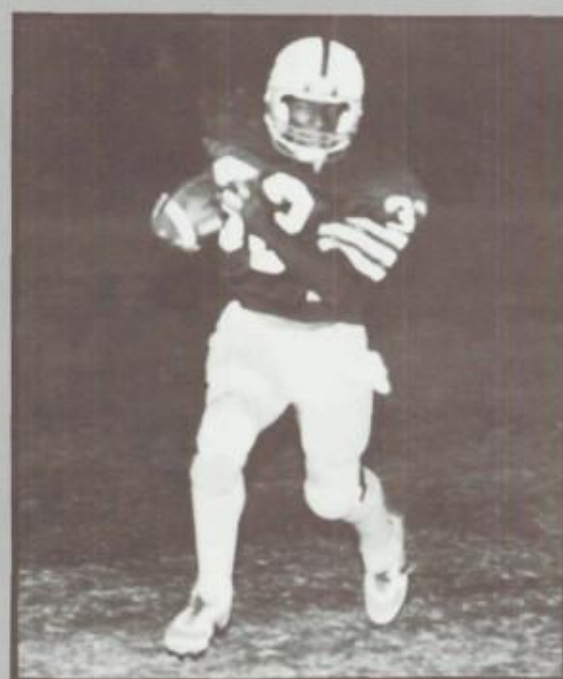

Some of the distinctions included All-City, All-State, Player of the Year by both Phoenix Gazette and Tempe Daily News, and All-Arizona. This was in addition to his breaking numerous McClintock records last season.

Parker, who played both defensive back and running back, participated in football for four years playing on the Varsity team for three. His other interests include weightlifting, baseball, and basketball.

Head football coach Karl Kiefer said Parker's mixture of intelligence, ability, and great common sense all added to his success on the field. Because of his progression over the last three seasons, Coach Kiefer feels his senior year was by far his most profitable one.

Parker intends to continue football in college. Of the ten colleges which contacted him, he favored San Diego State, ASU, Berkeley, and the University of Las Vegas.

"I'd like to pursue football as a career because my interests and background are in sports. Football seems to be my best sport," said Parker.

Anthony Parker received eight of the top honors after his final season.

Survival Course Challenges Duo

Summer may be a time to relax for many, but Matt Smith and Chris Merrill spent their summer on a survival course in southern Utah. The students of the Boulder Outdoor Survival School ranged in age from 15 to 50 with Merrill being the youngest to survive the journey successfully.

The course started with two days of classroom instruction to prepare for the events that followed. Hiking without food and water for three days demonstrated their first challenge. Since they had to search for their own food, lizards, guppies, tadpoles, bird embryo's and plants proved to be their main sustenance. To show the severity of the program, Merrill lost 15 pounds and Smith 25 pounds.

"I was always so hungry!" Merrill stated.

"Survival Week" tested their knowledge, as they hiked alone and faced the natural hazards of the wilderness. The course ended with a 15 mile run to board the homeward bound bus.

Though at times Merrill or Smith wanted to give up, each gave the other the encouragement to continue. Having had the chance to test themselves, they came out stronger willed and felt they could survive anything. Smith said, "It made us tough as nails."

Chris Merrill and Matt Smith display their full gear while in Utah.

Summer Affords Freedom of Choice

We have all seen summer come and go in numerous ways. Away from home or close to home, working or relaxing, students feel summer has one meaning: freedom from school.

Most students spent their summer at home. Andy Saban, however, spent his summer in Maui, Hawaii, working on a pineapple plantation. Though the work was hard it had its rewards. After the 8 hour work day, he spent his free time exploring the island, golfing or night surfing. The life-style in Hawaii was "kick-back, relax" and Saban enjoyed the freedom.

"It was an experience I will never forget," said Saban.

Other experiences such as ANYTOWN offered selected students the chance to interact with teenagers from around the state to discuss relationships in society. They developed positive attitudes to help overcome societal problems. Sister City delegates, spent time in Regensburg, Germany, and Skopje, Yugoslavia. They learned about the culture of the people and the history of the country. Sister City not only builds bonds between the students and their foreign "family," but also between nations. In retrospect, summer means the end of school for a while, but not the end of learning.

At the Mt. View pep rally, Kristie Cooke adds a touch of Halloween to her pom performance.

With Fudge Sale Juniors Acquire Prom Finances

Raising money for prom and finding an appropriate location proved to be a challenging goal for the junior class and its five officers. Through a major Fudge Hut candy sale, the class council raised approximately $3,000 and chose the Camelback Inn in Scottsdale as the setting for prom. The successful sale proved the old joke of "the prom being in the gym" false once again. Officers later selected "Sharing the Night Together" as the theme for their mini-extravaganza.

President Liesel Lunt credited juniors who were not class representatives as the force behind the fund-raising. "People who were not in student council took time out to sell the fudge. It was because of them that we made that money," she said. Lunt also praised Karen Jacobson and Calvin Boyle, advisers, for their cooperation and advice.

Other officers included Joe Rerez, vice-president; Jeni Bietz, secretary-treasurer; Amy Raap and Brant Brinlee, class representatives.

The council also constructed the Homecoming scene of a pirate's parrot and sponsored numerous flower parties.

Versatility Assists Elliott in Becoming Drum Major

A versatile musician, Rochelle Elliott favored the trumpet and French-horn. During her sophomore year in Charger Band, she realized her goal—to become a drum major. She long admired this position and felt she would pursue it.

Extra time and effort proved to be rewarding to Elliott and the band. "Being second drum major takes a load off Laurie Rowan and gives the band members more than one person to go to," said Elliott.

Tryouts consisted of learning two salutes and being able to conduct in 4/4, 3/4, and 2/4 time. Directing the band during "Red and Blue," and the Star Spangled Banner played a major role in tryouts. "When the band gets new music, Laurie and I have to learn it just like everyone else. This means getting to sectionals at 6:30 each morning to learn cues, tempo changes, and voice commands," stated Elliott.

She devotes her outside time to her church and studies. Showing leadership qualities, she serves as president of all Arizona State Youths in the Church of God and as vice-president-treasurer of her youth group at church. At school, she qualified for National Honor Society and was a member of A.F.S. Club.

Elliott plans to attend college and desires to try out for drum major at Arizona State University.

Discussing Halloween plans, Bryan Martyn and Hayley Gibbons wait for the bell to ring.

Playing Guitar, Listening to Music Inspired Ottwell

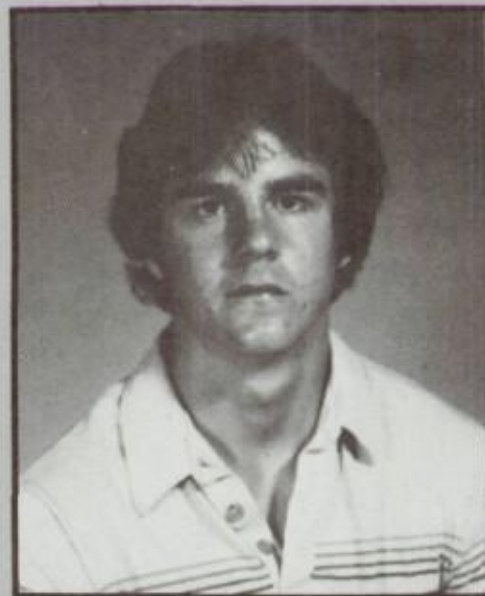

Two weeks before Christmas break, Lance Ottwell passed away in his Tempe home. Ottwell was born in Tacoma Park, Maryland on June 25, 1967, and had come to Arizona seven years ago. After attending both Camelback and Apollo High Schools, Lance transferred to McClintock in September as a junior.

Lance enjoyed listening to his favorite music such as Led Zepplin, Jimmy Hendrix, and Black Sabbath. Ottwell was also fond of the rythm guitar and had recently begun to play the bass guitar. In addition, he rode motorcycles, played video games and liked to socialize with his friends.

One of Ottwell's favorite classes, marketing, gave him the opportunity to express himself more freely. Fellow students recall Lance as an "aware, funny individual."

Ottwell had once stated that his ultimate wish was to find "his place in the woods." We at McClintock mourn the loss of Lance Ottwell.

Failure Increased Russell's Determination at Being Best

Failure did not deter Thomas Russell's hopes of being a musician. When he failed a test on drums, he then decided to learn to play the saxophone.

After Russell began playing, his older brother took up the trombone and his younger brother started playing the baritone. Both, however, quit after only one year. Russell has played the saxophone for eight years and has been in Jazz band since the seventh grade.

Russell was the only freshman in Jazz band. It was difficult for him until his instructor laid down the rules. "Get moving or that's it!" he said. Now Russell favors solos. "I like the solos because you can be creative and do your own thing," smiled Russell.

Besides being a top musician, Russell also excels in athletics. His best sports include track, football, and basketball. During his freshman year, he lettered in track and football.

Russell, a member of the Arizona Track Team, enters meets all over the United States. He was on ESPN for the Junior Olympic Nationals his sophomore year.

Russell credits Mr. Stoll for his musical achievements. Mr. Stoll has definitely helped him improve.

Tom Russell aims for first concert.

Modeling, Part-Time Hobby for Scofield Brothers

Modeling, to most, appear to be a profession where a person should be located in Hollywood or should have been discovered by a talent scout. This is not necessarily so for Bryan and Robert Scofield who for the past two years have been in advertisements ranging from cologne to Corvettes.

Bryan, a junior, also member of the speech and drama clubs, enjoys modeling but prefers acting. Robert, a senior, participates in intramurals, weightlifting and considers modeling a good part-time job. "It's not a constant job because there is not always work available and it would be hard to make a living off it," said Robert.

When they both first got interested in modeling, they spent close to $3,000 just in agencies and sessions alone. Since then they have received more than three times that amount in royalties, most of which has been invested in the business.

Both students have received credit for modeling in magazines such as: Car and Driver, Farrar, and GQ. They have also appeared in other numerous publications, in such ads as Natives, Xerox, and Soloflex. Being in magazines, though has not changed their lifestyles. They plan to attend college after graduation.

After fourth hour class, Bryan and Robert Scofield take a break before attending the pep assembly for the Mt. View clash.

Academics, Athletics Highest Priority for McEowens

Friendly competition promotes excellence between brother and sister, Greg and Pam McEowen. Not only do they excel athletically but also academically. "The unique thing about those two is their ability to work together," stated their mother, Nancy McEowen.

Academics play a major role in the McEowens' lives. Greg maintains a 4.0 grade point average, with Pam's slightly higher at 4.2.

"We both take the same classes, and it's good because we kind of push each other to do better," commented Greg.

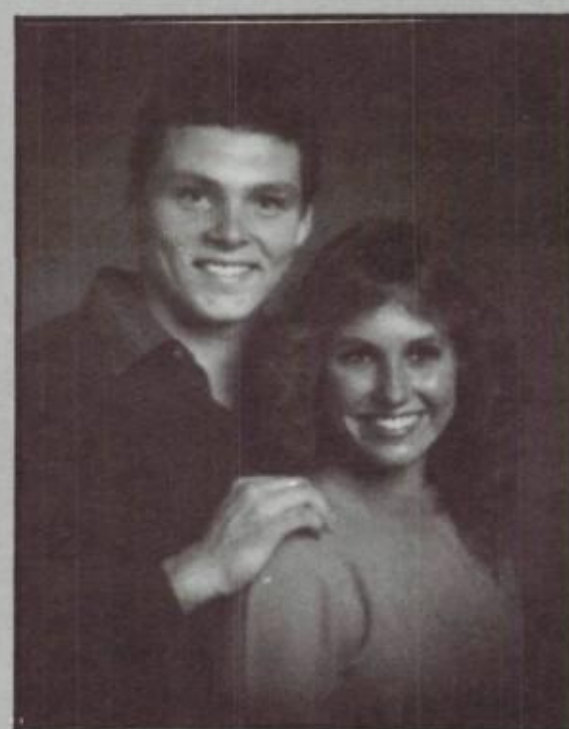

Although both McEowens place academics high on their priority list, they agree that athletics demand about half of their time.

Greg, who is 11 months older than his sister, excels in 3 varsity sports—football, basketball, and baseball. He also participates in the Letter Club.

Pam, with similar athletic tastes, plays varsity basketball, and in previous years has played softball and dived.

"Sports are really fun and I try to get as involved as I can. Cheer, however, is my favorite, as I like to support the school, and encourage the teams," said Pam.

Both McEowens feel the academic background they have gained at McClintock will help them in their years at college and later in life. Both are looking forward to attending a university.

Parents encourage Pam and Greg as both students strive for perfection.

"I definitely like being a sophomore over a freshman. Now I'm at the upperclass of the underclassmen." —Chris Donahue.

Sophomore softball player Yvette Aguilar pauses for a quick snack of peanuts before going on the field to bat.

Sophomores Glad to Leave Frosh Year Far Behind

Leaving their freshman year behind filled many sophomores with added confidence. However, anticipation still lingered toward their junior year when they would finally become upperclassmen. Realizing how quickly years can go by, many sophomores began early preparation for their future. Students concentrated on grades, they increased their involvement along with their school pride, and many of them tried different clubs and took part in various organizations.

The Sophomore Class increased their limited funds by selling tootsie pops, and having a car wash. Along with individual class sales, the sophomores helped Student Council sell painter hats and organized several campus projects. One of the best attended events for the sophomores included their multiple flower parties held before and during Homecoming Week. Working with the theme of Pirates of the Caribbean, the Sophomore Class pulled together to make a huge, colorful treasure chest filled high with jewels. The chest, surrounded with vibrant flowers, sat on an image of sand. "It was a lot of work but also a lot of fun! We ran out of brown paper for the ground but just used newspaper instead. All in all, I think our class got a little closer and more involved with all the flower parties and everything," said Tom Merriam, president.

ASYLUM Band Balances Schedule

Trying to divide their time between school, homework and band may be hard work for some people, but the five members of ASYLUM handle it well.

ASYLUM, a hard-rock band, began as just a few boys playing in Tom Merriam's garage. It then became one of the high school and college party scenes.

Tom Merriam, along with Mark Perales, Tony Smith, Mike Ennis and Todd Jones founded ASYLUM a year and a half ago. The band has been described as a cross between Judas Priest and Van Halen. Merriam's vocals resemble that of a young Kevin Dubrow.

Although their long term plans are uncertain, all members would like ASYLUM to be as big as local favorites Surgical Steel or School Boys.

Merriam commented, "We want to be a well-known band around Arizona."

"Tom's band has a lot of potential. They have a really good selection of other bands' songs plus their own material," said Carolyn Mulhern, sophomore.

Lead singer of ASYLUM, Tom Merriam rehearses for an upcoming engagement.

Football, Basketball Intrigue Versatile Colter

Playing sports seems to be what interests Cleveland Colter most. Colter enjoyed being wide receiver and defensive back on the varsity football team. Of the two positions, he favored playing wide receiver and prefers to retain that position. "The most memorable game that I'll never forget was the clash with Moon Valley. They were the best team in the state and we ended their sixteen-game winning streak. Overall I thought it had been our team's game," said Colter. Besides football he enjoys playing basketball. His previous experience includes playing on the JV team and varsity.

His father influenced him about participating in sports. One of his coaches, Benny Hinds, also helped him become a part of the sports world. "I like winning and competing against many of the outstanding athletes at other schools," said Colter.

Maintaining a good grade average appears difficult for many students but Colter worked hard at it and succeeded. He maintains a respectable average. "I like the people at McClintock because they are nice and helpful when needed. I also like the teaching here because I like to learn new concepts especially in English," said Colter.

He planned to participate in clubs and especially in the Letter Club. In his spare time, he favors hunting in the woods.

Alternates Responsibilities Trying but Rewarding

Alternates for varsity cheer, Suzy Hinds, and Jennifer Earley, formerly on junior varsity cheer, have similar opinions to the positions they hold. Both agreed that to be an alternate means to be willing to learn all that is needed of a cheerleader and put that first before and after school.

They are also included in fund raising, pep rallies, and overnight parties. The only difference between the alternates and the rest of the squad is that they do not cheer at games unless a cheerleader is ill, gone, or benched.

"I like it, but it takes a lot of time, especially when you have practiced all week long, and you know you are not going to cheer at the upcoming game," said Hinds.

Both attended N.A.U. cheer camp with other members of the squad.

Grade Point Average Top Priority for Worth

Kathryn Worth performs to "Georgia" at the Mt. View halftime.

During her freshman year, Kathryn Worth maintained a 4.5 grade point average. Since she was taking one less weighted class in her sophomore year she maintained a 4.3 average. Worth's parents encouraged her to get good grades, but did not push her.

"I push myself to do well in school, and get mad if I don't. I guess it's the way I have been raised," said Worth.

For Worth time was vital. Her involvement in Pom, Spirit Club, Letterman's Club, and Key Club kept her very busy. She found that most of her time was spent on homework. Her parents assisted her by reminding her of what she needed to do to excel in whatever she strives for.

Even though Pom and Key Club took up the majority of Worth's time, she still found time to spend with family, friends, and doing homework. Any other time was spent going to baseball games, wrestling matches, and going to school dances.

"Being involved in school activities enables me to meet new people and they have caused me to enjoy my school years to their fullest," said Worth.

She is uncertain of a college to attend or a profession to pursue, but hopes that she makes the right decision in whatever she attempts.

"It is fantastic that Kathryn is able to accomplish getting excellent grades, yet still maintain a great personality," said Tami Willingham.

During Spanish Class, Monica Williams asks Michelle Levario about the assignment. This is their second year of Spanish.

As Joy Bzoski responds, Emma Schindler, badminton coach, instructs her to safeguard the locker keys.

Seniors Welcome 20th Frosh Class to High School

As the twentieth Freshman Class arrived on the McClintock campus they were treated to the traditional welcome. Senior-designed posters and painted messages declaring all sorts of warnings littered the walls and sidewalks. As they hurried to class, the rest of the school stopped and called out, "Go home, frosh!"

Despite that unnerving first day the class of '87 soon became assimilated into the routine of daily high school life. They practiced for sports, joined organizations and worked on homework in the library.

"High school seems so different from junior high. You used to know everybody and now you see all these different people. But it's a lot more fun, especially the pep rallies," said one freshman girl.

In the first month of school, the class voted and elected their class officers. Officers included Jodi McMullen, president; Stacy Matz, vice-president; Michelle Wion, secretary-treasurer; Don Bouvier and Stephanie Cooke, class representatives. The class council borrowed $50 from the student body fund and began working on their first project, a scene for Homecoming. Freshmen worked at after-school flower parties to complete their pirate and cannon creation.

Pereira Compares Differences between Brazil, U.S.A.

Lianna Pereira experienced a change of lifestyle quite different from that of most students. Born in Michigan, she resided there for three months, then her parents decided to move to Salvador, Brazil where she lived for 11 years.

"There weren't that many changes between the two countries," replied Lianna. For instance, the style of clothing didn't change at all. Some of the different foods they ate were of African and Arabian origin. The people were very friendly and really outgoing much like the people here. The entertainment, however, is different from that of the U.S. Her entertainment consisted of going to movies, sailing, attending parties, and camping on islands and on the beaches. One other difference was the number of daily school hours: 4¼ compared to our 6¼ hours.

"The students in Brazil didn't get into school as much as they do here," said Pereira. "Most of the people don't start to work until they are either 18 or out of college. The kids are very spoiled and don't do many chores, and their families usually have maids. I have really enjoyed both living experiences," said Pereira.

Dehghanpisheh Enjoys Freedom, Happiness in U.S.

A relatively recent newcomer to the United States, Keivan Dehghanpisheh was born in Shiraz, Iran, 14½ years ago.

Dehghanpisheh's father works in Iran, and his mother, an American, teaches at Arizona State University. She was born in California and was reared in Arizona. His father will be returning to this country in the spring.

In Iran he studied some classes in English while others he studied in both Persian and English.

"After the revolution, I disliked Iran. The people here are a lot freer," he said. "People here are a lot happier and seem to enjoy life more."

Dehghanpisheh studies between two and three hours daily. His favorite class is geometry with Mr. Coe.

"I like McClintock," he said. "I like the students here."

In the future Dehghanpisheh hopes to find time to participate in swimming and wrestling. His hobbies, however, include hunting, fishing, and ping pong.

His plans include to attend A.S.U. and become a computer electronics engineer.

Keivan Dehghanpisheh heads for the gym.

Family Encouraged Dinnsen

Rick Dinnsen was born in Denver, Colorado, on September 26, 1968. He was involved in a fatal car accident while walking to school on March 2, 1984. Dinnsen's interests ranged from music to spending time with his family. His main goal was to return to Lake Havasu where he had attended junior high school. Dinnsen's favorite class was computer processing where he enjoyed working on the term finals.

"I saw Ricky as very shy, quiet, kind-hearted, and sincere," said Donna Pischiotta.

Frosh Choose Best, Worst of Mac

In order to capture the numerous feelings of freshmen the staff interrogated three classes. At McClintock the majority of the students enjoyed the pep rallies, students, teachers and the school spirit. Many of them appeared particularly glad that they had left their eighth grade year behind.

Their dislikes included being the youngest in school, being picked on by upperclassmen, the amount of homework and not being able to drive to school.

In regard to the freshman sports program students welcomed the opportunity to get involved in a variety of athletics.

When asked what their favorite classes were, students mentioned drama, general business, P.E., Spanish, art, algebra, choir, biology and typing. For some reason they did not include English, Home Ec., and Industrial Arts in their list of preferences.

As for their favorites, they listed several choices. Girls, boys, lunch, 2:25 p.m., football, hot dogs, holidays, teachers and clubs topped their list.

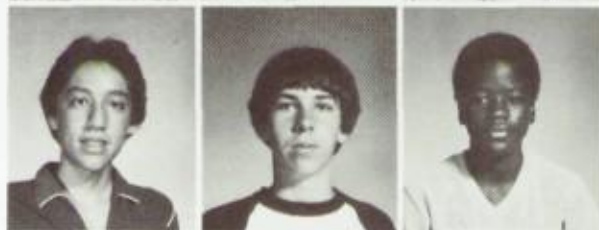

In English, Pat McCarty and Christine Hornak help with the poll on likes and dislikes.

Experienced Martinez, Only Freshman on Golf Team

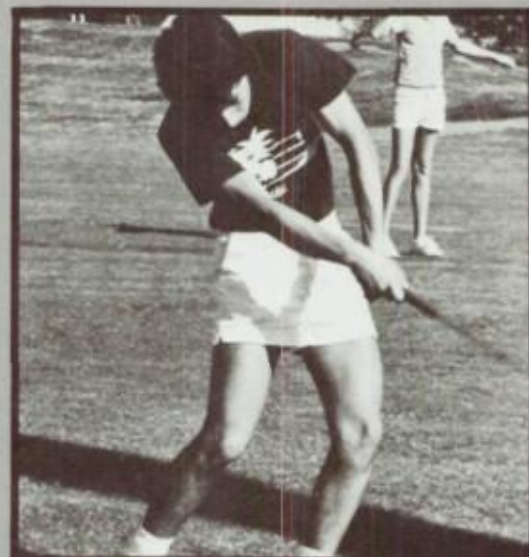

Charlie Martinez, the only freshman on the golf team, has been playing for two years. He started at eleven when his father bought him his first set of clubs. Although the whole family enjoys golf, Martinez cited his sister Denise as also being a big influence on him.

Throughout the season Martinez particularly enjoyed getting to visit different locations and meeting different people. Although he admitted to being teased by the team because of his age he said, "It wasn't so bad."

Citing highlights of his first playing year, Martinez noted that he was exuberant at making the traveling team to San Marcos against Mesa and Chandler. His best match at 43 was against San Marcos at Dobson.

Besides golf, Martinez participated in wrestling and track. All year, however, he plays golf particularly on weekends. One of his goals is to become an all-state player before completing his high school education.

Following through on a shot Charles Martinez places it on the green.

EXTRA SPECIAL

McClintock Ponders Local Community's 2 Decades of Growth

Over the past two decades, McClintock has influenced and changed the lives of thousands of people and the surrounding community with its extra special qualities of dedication and enthusiasm.

In its first year of existence, the school was still under construction and McClintock students attended Tempe High in afternoon sessions. But in February of 1965 the first freshmen and sophomores entered their new facilities, making the new buildings the second high school in Tempe.

"Though youth will pass us by,
we'll always harbor rev'rent memories of McClintock High
..." The Alma Mater.

As the school has grown so has the surrounding community. Tempe's population in 1964-65 was roughly 40,000 and by 1983-84 it tripled to 120,000. Previously vacant fields surrounded the school but now residential and business areas occupy that empty space.

Even though the community has rapidly developed and nearly 20 classes have been graduated, some aspects of McClintock remain the same. The laughter and the shouts heard between classes and at lunchtime have echoed from the campus for twenty years and hopefully, other voices will continue to reflect years full of extra special memories.

1. As the crowd sings "Happy Birthday", the varsity cheerleading squad presents their gift. 2. In 1964, the cafeteria awaits finishing touches.

McClintock 1964.

Boyle Auditorium

Faculty, Graduates Reflect on McClintock's Growth

In 1964 McClintock opened her doors. Of the 32 original faculty members, 6 teachers still teach on campus.

All six remember the growth of the community and how it has changed. One major difference appeared to be the addition of the freeway. Traffic jams now exist. The community has changed from a small town to a large growing city.

McClintock has prospered since 1964. Some outstanding elements include the cooperation among the teachers. Freedom is given to each teacher and a push towards excellence exists.

McClintock grew with the addition of the auditorium dedicated to the school's first principal, William Boyle. Later McClintock added a new gym, the annexes, and the racquetball courts.

The curriculum too has changed. For a few years it offered several electives. The emphasis now is on more required years of English, math and science.

When asked to pick one adjective to describe McClintock, Coach Kiefer, said "Her commitment is excellence. It's great to be a Charger." Coach Hatten said, "McClintock is great." Jim Coe added, "I feel the school has been very effective in preparing students for their future after high school."

Several staff members graduated from McClintock. Being a student and returning as a staff member pleases Dora Kovacsik and Casey Capps. They said it's a feeling of belonging and pride to see how McClintock has upheld its fine reputation. Mr. Capps said, "When I was a student I never really appreciated the faculty for what they did for me. When I entered college and found out how well I had been prepared, that feeling changed." Dora Kovacsik added, "I'm happy and proud to have graduated from McClintock. I truly believe this is the best school in the district."

After 20 years, teachers still display pride for the commitment to excellence McClintock has upheld. No two days are ever the same and there's always something new. Most teachers felt it's a great experience to be part of McClintock.

FROM THE EDITORS

When we were appointed co-editors of the 1984 HISTORIAN, we knew we would make a great team because we have been going to school and working on various projects together since 3rd grade.

We began with several goals in mind. Our first, was to set the 20th anniversary edition apart from past books. We hoped to create this by using a combination of old and new photos. Secondly, we strived to develop the theme of EXTRA! EXTRA!—THE 20th YEAR by focusing on the extra qualities of students, administration and curriculum. Our third goal was to break away from a traditionally conservative book without going overboard. We incorporated new layout styles and added our own special touches such as the personal message spread, and the closing spread.

None of this would have been possible if it had not been for the love and support from our families. We will also never forget our beloved Mrs. "D". She has been the guiding force behind twenty consecutively superior books. Through her we have learned the true meaning of communication and respect. Mr. Caples, you have also been one of our very special role models. Your talent as a photographer does not surpass your great personality and dependability.

Finally, we wish to thank the entire HISTORIAN staff who stuck with us through a very challenging year; without all of you there would be no book. We hope that in future years people will be able to look back and remember the special highlights that pertained to them in 1983-1984.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, McCLINTOCK!—We'll never forget you!

EXTRA! EXTRA!

A Special Year

As graduates receive their diplomas and toss their red and blue caps in the air, they have finished the unique American experience of high school. Even though these individuals go on to explore and discover life to a fuller extent, they still carry remembrances of McClintock High School. Although they will forget assignments, tests and half-days, they will always remember their friends and the teachers who helped them through the four years.

For 20 years, students have labored on homework in the library, cheered at pep rallies in the Old Gym and eaten on Senior Lawn. Their clothes, music, emotions and expressions have filled the school during two decades. When they are graduated, they leave adolescence behind and face maturity.

And Tomorrow is only a Vision,
But Today, well-lived,
Makes every Yesterday
A dream of Happiness.
And Every Tomorrow a Vision of Hope*

McClintock's twentieth year came to a close and another senior class experienced commencement. Memories within the campus and with classmates will linger on.

Although no two years are alike, McClintock High School experienced a unique and special year.
